SOVIET ECONOMY IN TROUBLE

...Brezhnev Makes 'Unusually Frank Report'

©The New York Times

Moscow — Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev was reported Friday to have told the party central committee last month, in a still unpublished speech, that the Soviet economy was suffering from serious difficulties.

In what was described by reliable Soviet sources as "an unusually frank report," Brezhnev was said to have called for tighter state control over planning, increased austerity measures and stricter work discipline.

Goals Not Attained

He was said to have virtually admitted that the goals of the economic reform adopted in 1965 — one year after he replaced Nikita S. Khrushchev as party leader — had not been attained.

His speech, now being widely discussed in party circles, indicated disenchantment with the party's earlier hopes that, by increasing profit incentives, the economic output of the Soviet Union could be dramatically improved.

Brezhnev spoke Dec. 15 to a one-day session of the central committee that was called to approve routinely the 1970 state plan and budget. These were made public the next day at a Supreme Soviet session, and from statistics and comments made by Nikolai K. Baibakov, head of the state planning committee, Western experts were able to ascertain that the Soviet economy had slumped in 1969 and had only moderate expectations for 1970.

The contents of Brezhnev's speech were not disclosed, nor was the session mentioned in detail. But the results of the meeting were approved by virtually every local Communist Party meeting in the country in the past month.

Pravda Prints 'Essence'

Last Tuesday, Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, ran a long editorial on the session. Soviet sources said the editorial contained the "essence" of Brezhnev's speech. The delay in the editorial was apparently due to the party's desire to have local parties hear about the speech before reading about it in Pravda.

The Pravda editorial has been reprinted in every major provincial paper, indicating the importance attached to it.

It said the central committee had heard Brezhnev's speech and had "pointed to difficulties and shortcomings" in the economy.

Pravda cited "lag of development rates in a number of industries, to the slow growth of labor productivity and of production efficiency."

"There are major shortcomings in the sphere of capital construction . . . It happens that estimated allocations for projects are overdrawn. In some places the construction of all sorts of administrative and other nonproductive projects — often not even stipulated by the state plan — has acquired intolerable scope," Pravda said.

Quality Needed

"Whereas previously we could develop the national economy mainly at the expense of quantitative factors, that is, an increase in the number of workers and the high rate of growth of capital investments, in the future we will have to count first of all on the qualitative factors of economic growth, on increasing the efficiency and intensity of the national economy," Pravda said.

"It is necessary to constantly measure expenses against results," it said, "to see to it that every invested ruble be used with maximum efficiency."

Discussing widespread complaints about shortages of meat, Pravda said the central committee "also criticized shortcomings in agriculture, in animal husbandry in the first place. An unwarranted reduction in the cattle and poultry stock and in the production of meat, milk and eggs was registered in a number of republics and regions," it said.

In a stern call for increased discipline, Pravda said that it was necessary "to put an end to thriftlessness, enhance discipline and responsibility at every level, energetically combat conservatism and bureaucracy and achieve the full use of production reserves in the economy."

GOP Raises Ante In Duel With Solons

Washington (AP) — The Nixon administration raised the ante Friday in its duel with Congress over an unwanted $1.3 billion for some types of health and education programs. It suggested a possible total halt for other medical, anti-pollution, education research and rehabilitation aid programs.

"If the President asks us to offset the expenditure impact, we could not make a single discretionary grant or loan for the rest of the year," said Creed C. Black, assistant secretary of health, education and welfare for legislation, in a 10-page letter to GOP members of Congress.

"And even with that extreme action we could offset only half the increases proposed by Congress," Black said.

"The consequence to medical research, health services, air pollution programs, rehabilitation, education research and a myriad of other project-supported activities are obvious."

Party Loyalty Urged

House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford and Senate Republican whip Robert P. Griffin, both of Michigan, warned party members Thursday against helping Democrats override a sure presidential veto of a $19.7 billion money bill for the Health, Education and Welfare Department and the Labor Department.

The bill, which is in the final stages of passage, contains $1.3 billion in addition to the President's budget.

Black said HEW will be required by law to disburse all but $100 million of the total to states under formula grants.

Dire Consequences

He said the added expenditures would be cleary inflationary, come too late in the fiscal year for wise use, go in large part to "marginal or misdirected programs" such as impacted school aid, and "compound the mistakes of the past" rather than develop new approaches for education problems.

School districts, Black said, would have less than four months this year to spend the additional aid. "It will be too late to hire teachers for the present term or to affect teaching programs in effective and preferred ways," he said.

In addition to impacted aid, Black said, money would be misdirected to obsolete vocational education programs that miss the dropout and slum school pupil and to the federal hospital construction program that is being overhauled.

And money for capital construction as well as for library books and library equipment can be safely deferred until later years, he said.

Farm Equipment Law Challenged

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

A suit challenging the constitutionality of LB1250 was filed Friday with the Nebraska Supreme Court by Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer.

The bill, passed by the 1969 Legislature, provides for valuation of farm equipment and machinery at the same dollar value used for federal income tax determination.

In the action, which names State Tax Commissioner Murrell B. McNeil as defendant, Meyer alleges that the bill is void and unenforceable and violates the state constitution in four respects:

—It provides for taxation of tangible property upon a basis that is not uniform or proportionate.

—It constitutes special legislation.

Delegates Power

—It delegates a portion of the legislative power of the State of Nebraska to Congress.

—It is vague and uncertain.

Under provisions of the bill, which was introduced by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell, the tax commissioner is given the power to establish guidelines as to the minimum values in relation to the cost of machinery or equipment.

According to the petition, the interest of the state requires that the validity of LB1250 be determined in order that McNeil and other officers of the state and its political subdivisions may properly perform the duties imposed upon them by law.

Meyer told The Star that every effort is being made to "expedite" the matter and that Lincoln attorney Kenneth Cobb will represent McNeil in the action.

Opinion Requested

The Nebraska County Assessors Association had requested at its October meeting an opinion on the bill from the attorney general's office after the assessors had received an opinion from Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas that it was unconstitutional.

Dakota County Assessor Joy Nixon, secretary of the association, said last month that no response had been received in connection with the request for an opinion and that unless some directive or opinion were received, the assessors might refuse to enforce the bill.

Many assessors had expressed concern over the bill because of the possible inequities which could result from its enforcement and the possibility that other taxpayers could claim the same method of valuing all real and personal property.

According to Randall Rinquest, attorney for the tax commissioner's office, his office has advised county assessors who have inquired to proceed under the former law using the previous guidebooks for valuation of farm equipment until they are advised differently.

Friendship At Heart Of Girl's Liking Lin-Co-Y

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

For Miss Peg Keelan, the appeal of Lin-Co-Y is in the small friendship groups that also lead to acquaintances with girls from all parts of the city.

The clubs of 10-15 girls each meet weekly for a variety of programs, but also frequently join "brother" units or all Lin-Co-Y youths for different kinds of activities.

Miss Keelan, 16, a junior at Lincoln High School, is president of the new Senior Inter-City Council that coordinates the nearly 50 Lin-Co-Y girls' groups in the city.

In addition to serving as the policy-making body of the girls' Lin-Co-Y, the Inter-City Council provides programs in the same areas established by the YWCA for the individual units: service, recreation, citizenship and responsibility, inspiration and religion and understanding oneself and others.

While the council meetings are open to all Lin-Co-Y members, each unit has three official representatives for voting purposes.

Other officers of the council include Miss Janet Cejka of Northeast High School, vice president; Miss Gerry Nutt of East, secretary and Miss Linda Yost of Southeast, treasurer.

Miss Keelan feels the value of the Lin-Co-Y clubs — she is a member of the Odd Squad — and the council is in providing opportunities for girls to meet with friends and to gain a better understanding of the problems youth face.

Improving relations among students in the different public high schools also is an important function, she said.

Activities of the Lin-Co-Y units, usually formed when girls are sophomores, revolve around the five program areas, although the emphasis on each one varies with the desires and interests of the clubs, reported Mrs. Darlene Miltner of the YWCA.

The aim is to allow teen-agers to direct their own activities and develop their own identities but still have a sense of belonging, she said.

The units and council provide a "sounding board" of peers to consider answers to problems facing youth and allow the youths to "test for themselves their own religious and moral principles and refine them," she added.

Miss Keelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Keelan, of 3223 U, is also secretary of the Lincoln High Student Council, a member of the Girls Glee Club and Human Relations Council and attends Faith United Methodist Church.

Vandals Are Creating Scholastic Fortresses

Washington (AP) —Reacting to a wave of vandalism, burglaries and arson, many of the nation's public schools are becoming scholastic fortresses.

A national survey indicates that some of the largest school systems have turned to barbed wire, floodlights, police dogs, heavy iron grills, plastic windows and an array of alarms and electronic surveillance systems to cut the cost of vandalism, now estimated in scores of millions of dollars each year.

The survey, conducted last year by the Baltimore public school system and released by a U.S. Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee, said the 36 school systems answering a questionnaire reported a $6.5 million vandalism and arson loss in the 1967-68 school year.

Like World War II

"The Baltimore study reads like something out of a World War II movie," a Senate aide said. "It is one of the firmest indications we have had that the problems of school vandalism and violence are getting out of hand."

The survey reports that in the 1967-68 school year alone, New York City schools suffered 243,652 broken windows with a replacement cost of $1.21 million.

In the same period, that city reported 2,757 school larcenies which cost it $1,219,912. There were 196 school fires blamed on arson which did $278,585 in damage.

Los Angeles reported 5,183 incidents which cost it $940,124; Baltimore reported 747 incidents of vandalism costing $716,602; Milwaukee, 11,060 incidents costing $406,699; Washington, D.C., 43,728 incidents costing $410,463 and Newark, N.J., 27,457 reports of vandalism at a cost of $346,391.

Viet Cong Invade Town Near My Lai

Saigon (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas invaded a hamlet near My Lai Friday and hurled dynamite charges into houses, killing 16 persons and wounding 21.

The attack was the second in two weeks against Chau Thuan, an enclave of refugees and pacification workers in the Viet Cong-infested Batangan Peninsula along the South China Sea.

One American was killed and another was wounded in the latest assault. The other casualties were South Vietnamese, most of them civilians asleep when the Viet Cong struck.

U.S. officers regarded the attack as yet another enemy attempt to discredit the Saigon government's ability to maintain security in the countryside. Allied intelligence anticipates pacification and refugee centers will be prime targets on any large-scale enemy offensive in coming weeks.

Definition Of Statewide Education Goals 'Needed'

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Development of a statewide testing program for Nebraska schools will be difficult without a clear definition of state educational goals, the State Board of Education was told Friday.

Dr. Frances E. Colgan, interim coordinator for the testing program, said there is a vast difference between measuring the educational accomplishment of the individual and those of school system in terms of educational goals.

"The board has to decide first by policy what it wants to accomplish by statewide testing," he said.

Superficial

Mrs. Deborah Shepherd of Lexington, board member, said the statewide system should test for reading, writing and arithmetic, but Dr. Coolgan suggested this type of testing would be superficial.

"Just because you find Johnny, in the third row, fourth seat, is reading a half-year behind his class, what do you do about it at the state level?" he asked. "That is already the concern of local school administration."

Dr. Colgan said California has been using statewide testing for nearly 10 years, and its legislature is now becoming concerned the program has been without defined goals.

Not As Criteria

State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley said statewide testing cannot be used as a criteria for state accreditation of schools.

"The 1969 Legislature authorized a state testing program," he said, "but it was not included in the criteria under law for school accreditation."

Squabble Hits Board

He said the department has funds for state supervision of a testing program, but not for administration of the tests.

"The state will have to monitor the program so schools don't teach just to pass a test," he added.

30 States

The board was told 30 states have testing programs that can be explored in developing a Nebraska system.

The board unanimously instructed the state commissioner to proceed to develop plans for a statewide testing program with recommendations on its implementation, administration and funds for its consideration at a later meeting.

In other action, the board authorized the State Vocational-Technical School at Milford to secure cost estimates on construction of a new dormitory at the school and possible revenue bond funding.

School officials said needed remodeling of the present 60-man dormitory and cafeteria would cost $280,000, or approximately $14.75 per square foot.

$20 Per Foot

The board was told a new structure probably would cost less than $20 per square foot, and this should be considered in lieu of expensive remodeling of an old structure.

The board's next regular meeting was scheduled for Feb. 6 at Milford, where members will view the dormitory and consider the requested report.

The board also authorized the hiring of vocational education instructors at the State School for the Deaf at Nebraska City.

In other action, the board authorized the state investment office to invest three department funds in appropriately maturing securities.

This included the Teachers Certificate Fund, $98,000; Surplus Property Fund, $46,000, and Drivers Education Fund, $1.1 million.

Earned interest will accumulate to the specific fund rather than the state general fund under 1969 legislation recreating the State Investment Council.

Pollution By Oil Affects Entire World's Oceans

©The New York Times

By WALTER SULLIVAN

New York — Ever since the ships of Columbus first became entangled in its weeds, the Sargasso Sea has been known for its drifting plants, but today its coating of tar and oil is more extensive than its famous seaweed.

This is reported by a leading authority on the origin and fate of oils and other organic substances in the oceans. He says global spillages have reached the point where the entire world ocean is affected.

Petroleum constituents, some suspected of causing cancer, are entering the oceanic food chain, he warns, and eventually could reach dining room tables. Thus the world faces the possibility of losing the seas as a food source just as the population reaches the level where such protein becomes essential.

Grim Warning

This grim warning has been issued by Dr. Max Blumer, a Swiss-born scientist formerly with Royal Dutch Shell and now senior scientist in the chemistry department of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts.

His views appear in his contribution to a book, "Oil on the Sea," published last month by Plenum, and in a recent issue of Oceanus, organ of the Woods Hole Institution.

In a telephone interview, Blumer told how the chemical peculiarities of oil from a single source could be used to place the blame for oil damage. Petroleum as it comes out of the ground is an enormously complex mixture of substances, some extremely poisonous, some probably long-term inducers of cancer, some suitable as food for lower organisms.

However, since the mixture from any one source is unique, a relatively simple chemical analysis can show from where it came. Blumer recounted that last Sept. 16, the barge Florida grounded off West Falmouth, Mass., spilling some 65,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil.

Subsequently oysters and scallops harvested along that shoreline were unfit for consumption because of their oil content, Blumer said. Furthermore, he added, it has been possible, by chemical analysis, to show that the damage was done by No. 2 fuel oil of the same type as that spilled by the barge

The spread of oil over the Sargasso Sea is remarkable in that it lies in mid-Atlantic, far from heavily travelled shipping lanes. However it is in the central whirl of the great circulating system of North Atlantic ocean currents whose best-known element is the Gulf Stream.

Center Of Eddy

Thus, as debris collected in the center of a whirling eddy, so, apparently, drifting algae known as sargassum has accumulated there. The oil and tar scum appear likewise to have come from afar.

The accumulation was observed by the Woods Hole research ship Chain during a sweep of 540 miles along the 67th Meridian west of Greenwich. It systematically dragged a "neuston" net designed to skim from the ocean surface its rich assortment of plant and animal life.

After two to four hours the net became so clogged with oil that it had to be cleaned with a strong solvent, Blumer reported.

Million Tons Or More

Annual world oil production is about 1.8 billion metric tons, he said, of which at least 60% travels the seas. The total spillage, from leaks, accidents, flushing of bilges and tanks is, he estimates, about a million tons.

This, however, he believes to be a conservative estimate and does not include production accidents, such as the recent leakage in Santa Barbara Channel, or industrial dumping into rivers and harbors that flow to the sea. The grand total, therefore "is likely to be 10 to 100 times higher," Blumer estimated.

While stringent preventive measures are the obvious remedy, he said, where spills have occurred he favors burning or actual removal of the oil from the sea. The use of detergents, as in the great Torrey Canyon spill off England, breaks up the oil into tiny particles that more easily are taken up by tiny animals and thus enter the food chain, eventually reaching men.

Signs Say Inflation Losing Some Grip

Washington (AP) — Three key government reports indicated Friday that inflation is losing some of its grip on the American economy.

World News

Industrial production, personal income and housing starts showed the effects of the Nixon administration's stringent efforts to curtail the spiraling price increases that have robbed consumers of purchasing power.

They added emphasis to the gross national product report Thursday, which showed that economic growth stopped entirely in December.

'Beginning To Work'

At the same time, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said declining price increases in the last half of 1969 gave indications "that the anti-inflationary policies are beginning to work."

However, the new figures showed that production of the nation's businesses and industries is slowing considerably faster than prices, which may continue to rise for some time yet.

Industrial production in December dropped 0.3% from November to 170.9% of the 1957-59 average. The decline was the fifth monthly drop in a row.

Personal income increased $2.3 billion during the month, the smallest gain of 1969. It continued the slower growth apparent since September.

Housing starts in December, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, figured out at 1,245,000 units, compared to 1,297,000 in November. The December report was a further reflection of the long slide in housing production that began early in the year, primarily as a result of the tight money policies that accompanied the anti-inflation program.

Despite the encouraging anti-inflationary tone of the report, the GNP report noted that prices rose last year by 4¾%, the sharpest climb since 1951. Since the figure includes all prices, it is different from both the wholesale and consumer price indexes to which Ziegler referred.

Consumer prices, he said, rose 6.4% in the first six months of 1969 but only 3.2% in the five months ending Nov. 30.

Grind Down 8%.

The slowing trend is appearing in more obscure reports, such as the Commerce Department's disclosure Friday that the nation's cocoa bean grind was down 8% in 1969 because of a tight supply and high prices. It was the lowest in five years.

The further decline in housing starts was no surprise because housing is one of the industries most affected by tight money and resulting high interest rates.

Wing Crack Grounds C5

Washington (AP) — The Air Force grounded its huge C5 supertransport planes Friday after a wing crack was discovered in one of the giant aircraft undergoing wing modifications at the Lockheed plant in Marietta, Ga.

The crack was eight to 10 inches in length and in the same area where a weakness was reported during earlier static load tests, the Air Force said.

All 10 of the big transports built so far are undergoing precautionary inspections and will be grounded until the inspections are complete.

The plane on which the wing crack was discovered has logged 297 flying hours in 84 flights, authorities said. The crack occurred in an area that is being strengthened by installation of a wing fix.

The 230-foot-long C5, the world's largest airplane, is designed to carry tanks, helicopters, trucks and troops.

All 10 of the supertransports were ordered to undergo wing strengthening after a crack developed last July during a ground test.

That crack occurred, the Air Force said, while the test wing was undergoing 125% of designed load limit, but it was felt that all the existing C5s should have their wings bolstered.

Meanwhile, the engineers came up with an aluminum brace designed to strengthen 11 points on the huge wing, the Air Force said.

The 10 C5s which will now stay grounded until they are fitted with the new strengthening devices are part of a fleet of 81 which the Pentagon plans to buy. The remaining 71 will have the wing strengthening built in as they are constructed on the production line.

Committee To Get Mail To Prisoners

©The New York Times

Chicago — Anti-war activists have announced the formation of a committee to "facilitate communication between servicemen held in North Vietnam and their relatives in the United States."

At a news conference here, the founders said the Hanoi government had agreed to work through the new committee, which is called "Committee of Liaison with Families of Servicemen Detained in North Vietnam."

Cora Weiss, of Riverdale, N.Y., a housewife who is co-chairman of the committee, said Hanoi had agreed to send all mail from American prisoners of war to the committee, which will have offices at 365 West 42nd St. in New York City.

She said the committee would then forward the letters to the prisoners' families.

Mrs. Weiss, who spent two weeks in North Vietnam in December, said the North Vietnamese had also agreed to answer inquiries from families of missing men to the committee's office and would "attempt to confirm their status."

She said it might often take a long time for North Vietnamese authorities to determine whether a specific airman had been killed in an air crash, was injured or was being held in a prisoner of war camp. But she said the committee hoped for reasonably prompt responses.

Police Grab Kidnaper After Wild Car Chase

Olathe, Kan. (AP) — A girl, kidnaped Thursday night at a Johnson County shopping center, was ransomed Friday for $3,500 and in a police chase following the pickup a policemen was shot, two others injured, and the man police say picked up the money, parolee Thomas Lamb, 28, was captured.

The kidnaped girl, Miss Patricia Childs, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Childs of Overland Park, was released unharmed on payment of the ransom before the chase began.

Police accounts gave this picture:

Childs, following telephoned instructions from the kidnaper, parked his car on a lot at U.S. 56 in Olathe and passed the $3,500 ransom to the driver of a car that pulled alongside. Patricia got out of the car and joined her father.

At this point unmarked detectives' cars closed in on the kidnaper's auto. One rammed the car, but was unable to stop it, and the kidnaper sped north.

He fired two shots at a pursuing police car in which Overland Park policemen Robert Norman and Jim Beeler were riding. Norman waas seriously wounded.

Both cars went into a skid and Norman fell out.

The kidnaper then turned back toward Olathe.

Two miles north of Olathe it collided with a Johnson County sheriff's deputy's car. Two officers in the car were injured as was the fugitive, who was taken into custody.

Ibo Ex-President Assures Biafrans

Lagos, Nigeria (AP) — Former President Nnamdi Azikiwe, a fellow tribesman of the Ibos of Biafra, returned from abroad Friday on a mission to assure war-ravaged Biafrans "that all is now well and safe."

Azikiwe, who was this nation's first president from 1963 to 1966, is popularly known in Nigeria as Zik — pronounced Zeke.

He had been in London writing a book on Nigeria, but returned, he said, to tour the East Central State, the core of Biafra, and infuse faith in the people. He also is expected to meet with Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon and other leaders.

Azikiwe said Nigeria's effort at national reconciliation had been made easier by the surrender signed in Lagos Thursday by Maj. Gen. Philip Effiong, Biafra's last leader. Azikiwe urged "benevolent neutral" nations to cooperate with the federal government.

At the outset of Biafra's secession in 1967, Azikiwe expressed support for the split. Last August, he withdrew it, said he backed federal Nigeria and urged Ibos to abandon the fight.

Chief Anthony Enahoro, Nigeria's information commissioner, told newsmen the mass movements of refugees had stopped in what had been Biafra and relief teams had canvassed the area.

Enahoro predicted the emergency would be over in a month and that after three months emphasis would turn totally to rehabilitation.

He said Nigerian Red Cross teams, as of Thursday, were regularly feeding 700,000 persons. Only at Uli and Newi was the army still handling relief, he added.

Other Husbands May Return

Lagos (AP) — Many Nigerian women who recently married face a dilemma now the civil war is over. Their other husbands might come home.

When Ibos fled to the East in 1966, many non-Ibo wives stayed behind.

For three years they had no word of their husbands, hearing only that millions were dying in Biafra.

Red Cross figures show 4,264 people tried to trace relatives in Biafra — husbands, wives, parents, children — and only 878 received word.

Many women just gave up and remarried. Several had children by new husbands.

A popular weekly newspaper carried a story Friday of a fight in a maternity ward between two men who claimed to be the father of the same child and husbands of the mother.

Israeli Planes Raid Day, Night

By The Associated Press

Israeli warplanes struck into Egypt Friday on day and night raids, hitting army camps, motor pools and a radar station, the Israeli military command announced in Tel Aviv.

A spokesman said one Israeli aircraft was downed by Egyptian antiaircraft fire and the pilot was seen bailing out into Egypt. The Egyptians claimed they shot down three planes.

The raiders first struck 45 miles inside Egypt, then four hours later, Israeli planes hit military targets near Ras Za'Farana, 100 miles south of the Suez Canal on the west bank of the Gulf of Suez.

Friday's action was the third attack deep inside Egypt since the beginning of the year.

The Lebanese newspaper Al Hayat reported Friday that an Egyptian military court had sentenced five Egyptian officers to death for letting a top secret radar station be captured by the Israelis Dec. 26.

The radar station, one of the Soviet Union's latest types, was dismantled on the Gulf of Suez by Israeli commandos and taken back to Israel by helicopters, according to earlier reports from Tel Aviv.

Tripoli, Libya (AP) — Col. Muammar Kadafi, who was just a lieutenant 10 days before he ousted Libya's king, moved up to prime minister Friday in a move that apparently tightened his control over government operations.

Kadafi, 27, also placed four fellow officers into important cabinet posts.

Farm, Ranch Total Drops

. . . Steady Decline Since 1934

By the Associated Press

The number of farms and ranches in Nebraska during 1969 was 3% below the number in 1968, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Friday.

The 1969 total was 74,000 with 48.2 million acres of land in operation. The total compares with 76,000 farms in 1968 containing the same 48.2 million acres.

The preliminary estimate for 1970 was set at 73,000 farms and ranches with a total acreage expected of about 48.1 million acres, the report said.

The number of farms and ranches in the state has shown a steady decline since 1934, when the number was 135,000, the statisticians said.

By 1957 the number dropped below 100,000 and the figure has dropped 22% since 1960.

The decrease reflects continued consolidation of tracts with the average size of farms and ranches showing corresponding increases, the report said, indicating the average size for 1970 was 659 acres, compared with 518 acres in 1960.

In other reports Friday, the crop experts said the Nebraska range was open during December and cattle made extensive use of winter pastures and gleaning corn and milo fields. Protein supplements were being fed in most areas where the cattle were still grazing.

Because of the open range, the report said, cattle have been able to graze, reducing the possibility of an inadequate hay supply that could have developed where dry weather this summer produced a short hay crop.

Temperatures were favorable for young animals, although additional care was required during cold and snowy periods, the report said. Calves have been weaned with light losses. Some cases of shipping fever have been reported.

Hooper (AP) — Voters in School District 94, Hooper-Uehling, have approved by a 71% majority a $385,000 bond issue to equip the new Logan View Junior-Senior High School being built northwest of Winslow.

The vote was 289 for the bond issue and 119 opposed.

The school, scheduled to be opened next fall, was built with proceeds from the sale of $1.5 million in bonds approved by voters in September of 1968.

Gray Is Found Guilty On Two Heroin Charges

Omaha (UPI) — Donald Gray, 30, of Omaha was found guilty by a Federal District Court jury on two of four counts for the illegal sale and transportation of heroin.

Sentencing for Gray was deferred by chief federal District Judge Richard E. Robinson.

Gray was alleged to have taken over $200 from two narcotic agents in four separate purchases of heroin.

Dickinson's Body Found In Truck

Scottsbluff (AP)—The State Patrol Friday found the body of Warren C. Dickinson, 76, of rural Scottsbluff in the cab of his pickup truck which had left the road, went into a ditch and came to rest on an embankment.

Deputy Scotts Bluff County Atty. Randy Reed said indications were that Dickinson died while at the wheel from natural causes.

The truck was found on a country road about six miles east and one mile north of Scottsbluff.

Bengston Home North Of Hickman 'Totally Burned'

Fire officials in Hickman reported that the Quentin Bengston residence four miles north of Hickman was "totally burned" in a fire Friday night.

Bengston and his family were able to escape the blaze without injury, but no possessions were salvaged. Total value of the damage was more than $35,000, fire officials said.

A faulty furnace was listed as "possible cause" of the fire.

Bengston is the owner of Quentin's Clothing at 1229 R St.

Eckman Death Ruled Accidental

Bellevue (AP) — Sarpy County Attorney Dixon Adams has ruled that Richard C. Eckman, 32, Bellevue, died accidentally last Saturday from carbon monoxide poisoning in his car in the garage of his home.

Officers were called to the house when a telephone operator received an emergency call from Mrs. Eckman.

Officers said the carbon monoxide fumes apparently seeped into the house from the garage, and Mrs. Eckman was found lying on the floor by the telephone.

She and her three children were carried from the house and saved.

24-Hour Vigil For Pregnant Gorilla Starts

Omaha (AP) — Brigitte the gorilla is expecting, and three Henry Doorly Zoo employes have begun a 24-hour vigil, part of which they plan to spend in the gorilla's cage.

"Having a baby will be strange to Brigitte," said Dr. Lee Simmons, assistant zoo director. "We have to get to that little gorilla before she could accidentally harm it."

Last August, the first gorilla born at the zoo died after its mother got excited and accidentally injured the baby gorilla's head.

The three employes, John Martinez, Jacquie Kudlacz and Jerry Stones, have spent weeks making friends with Brigitte, feeding her and establishing that they are the bosses.

Aetna Firm Found Liable For Cavein

Nebraska City (UPI) — The Aetna Insurance Co. has been found to be liable for approximately $50,000 in compensation payments and other expenses in a bridge cavein near Otoe, Neb., on April 24, 1968.

Killed in the cave-in were Miner A. Bassinger, Frank Williams and Alvin J. Neeman. Injured was Maurice V. Karspeck.

The widows and Karspeck sought the damages in Otoe County District Court.

Judge Walter H. Smith ruled Aetna was liable for compensation payments and other expenses as determined by a workmen's compensation court since the Aetna policy was in force at the time of the mishap.

The judge said the co-defendant in the case, Hawkeye-Security Co., proved its policy had been cancelled prior to the accident.

The compensation court has ruled the survivors of the three men who were killed were entitled to $45 per week for 325 weeks plus $75 towards burial expenses. The court ruled Karspeck would receive $45 per week for approximately 19 weeks and $2.50 per week for approximately 281 weeks, plus medical and hospital expenses.

Ex-Millard Chief Caruso Facing Burglary Charge

Omaha (AP) — A burglary charge has been filed by Douglas County Attorney Donald Knowles against Kenneth Caruso, 26-year-old former police chief at Millard.

Caruso is charged in a burglary at the Oak Hills Country Club near Millard in December of 1967. Deputy sheriffs said a television set which was part of the loot was picked up when they arrested Caruso Monday.

The burglary occurred shortly after Caruso left the Omaha Police Department and joined the Millard force. He resigned as chief last week.

Bartok Quartet Vital, Exhilarating

By RUTH ARDIS

Playing that was vitally alive and rhythmically exhilarating characterized the performances of the Bartok Quartet at Sheldon Gallery Friday evening. The concert was the second in the Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music Series.

The three quartets heard — Beethoven's Quartet in E-Flat Major, Opus 74, Bartok's Sixth and Debussy's Quartet in G Minor — were each, in their way, interpreted with imaginative understanding.

The group displays model teamwork as well as individual merit. The members of the ensemble are: Peter Komlos, violin; Sandor Devich, violin; Geza Nemeth, viola, and Karoly Dotvay, cello.

As might be expected from a group which was honored by being officially named the "Bartok Quartet" by the Hungarian Education Ministry and the Bartok family, the group gave its most intense and sensitive reading to the Bartok Sixth Quartet.

Their affinity for the music — partially through heritage and temperament — was apparent. The Sixth Quartet has a remarkable variety of rhythms, harmonic effects, and opposing sonorities. The group excelled in both the lyrical and energetic aspects of the work.

In the Debussy, the quartet achieved a shimmering quality of tonal beauty and an improvisational give-and-take in the rhythmic flow.

The poetic coloring and nuances of the Andantino were particularly lovely as each instrument in turn presented the haunting melody.

Beethoven's Opus 74 was an appropriate opening to commemorate the composer's 200th anniversary. The intensely beautiful Adagio was played with elegant style of phrasing and controlled dynamics. This work in its totality was a good companion piece to Bartok and Debussy.

As an encore, Haydn's Finale from the Quartet in G Minor found favor with the large audience.

Buffalo County Reappraisal Is Challenged

Kearney (AP) — Action was filed in Buffalo County District Court here Friday seeking to prevent the county and state from using property reappraisal figures reached by the Justin A. Haynes Co. in its contract with the county to reappraise all property in the county.

The petition was brought in by a group known as the Committee for Action on Urban and Rural Taxations, Inc.

Named as defendants were members of the Buffalo County Board, the State of Nebraska, State Tax Commissioner Murrell McNeil, Buffalo County Assessor Cecil Wright and Buffalo County Treasurer Luther Wimberley.

The petition alleges that the Haynes firm, based in Denver, employed inexperienced workers in the reappraisal project, that many appraisals were made without examination of the land or buildings and that insufficient time was spent on the project.

It also alleges that the Haynes figures are arbitrary, unreasonable, unequal and unrealistic.

The court was asked to issue a temporary restraining order against the defendants prohibiting them to use the Haynes figures for tax purposes and also prohibiting them from paying any money to the Haynes firm.

'69 Traffic Death Toll Down To 422

Nebraska's 1969 traffic fatality count was reduced by one Friday — to 422.

State Accident Records Bureau director Tom Ryan said he was removing from the 1969 list the name of William E. Johnson, 85, of Beatrice.

Ryan said Johnson was thought to have been struck by a car while walking at Court and Fifth Sts. in Beatrice Dec. 26, but it has since been ascertained that Johnson was not struck by the car. Death resulted from injuries received in a fall on the slippery street, Ryan said.

Meanwhile, Ryan said the death of Floyd M. Crosley, 68, of Fremont Thursday in a train-car collision will not be counted as traffic fatality.

Ryan said the accident happened on the railroad right of way about two-tenths of a mile from the crossing. Fremont police said Crosley was standing beside the car at the time of the crash and was thrown about 50 feet down the tracks by the impact.

3,000 Placed On Jobs In December '69

A total of 3,077 persons were placed on jobs in Nebraska during December by local offices of the Nebraska Division of Employment, according to State Labor Commissioner Thomas Doyle.

The figure represents a 36% decline from December 1968, when 4,864 placements were made. Most of the difference is the result of a decline in the non-agricultural category following last year's unusually heavy demand for temporary snow removal workers, and concurrent declines in private household placements and service placements.

The active file of persons seeking jobs declined 4% from 9,238 to 8,869, and new applications declined from 4,045 to 3,473.

A total of $441,110 was paid out to claimants for unemployment insurance benefits, compared with $429,069 in December 1968.

Mulattos Cross Lines

Johannesburg (AP) — Two mulattos, officially listed as Coloreds under South African segregation laws, were penalized in magistrates court for working at carpentry jobs reserved for whites. Phillip Swartz was fined $28 and Jacobus Smit $56 under the Industrial Conciliation Act.

Lincoln Man, 56, Burned In Fire, Dies In Hospital

A 56-year-old Lincoln man who suffered second-degree burns over 50% of his body as the result of a fire at his residence at 436½ F on Sunday died in a Lincoln hospital Thursday night.

Hospital officials were waiting for the results of an autopsy to determine the cause of death of Elmer Tincher.

Fire inspectors reported that "it was evident from the scorch marks of the fire inside the house that an explosion had occurred."

Assault Charges Filed In Wounding Of Picket

Dakota City (AP) — Charges of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm were filed in Dakota County Court Friday against Howard Brentinger Sr., Allen, Neb., in connection with the wounding of a picket at the struck Iowa Beef Packers Plant at Dakota City last Nov. 21.

Raymond Gonzales, 24, Sioux City, Iowa, who suffered two bullet wounds in the affray which occurred as Brentlinger and his wife were leaving the plant, signed the complaint.

Gonzales has already filed a $500,000 damage suit against Iowa Beef and Brentlinger.

Dakota County Attorney Cecil Orton said that "after full investigation by the Nebraska Highway Patrol, the Dakota County attorney's office has determined that a complaint of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm should be filed against Brentlinger." County officials asked the patrol investigation.

'Self Protection'

Dakota County officials originally said that the shooting fell under Nebraska's new self protection law giving a person the right to use any means necessary to protect his person or property.

Union officials lodged a protest.

International Vice President Dave Hart of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, called on Gov. Norbert Tiemann to take steps to see "that the sheriff and county attorney enforce the law impartially or they be removed from office."

Gonzales alleged that Mrs. Brentlinger used vile language on the pickets; that he opened the door on the passenger side and kicked a picket. He said in his petition in the damage suit that when the kick was returned, Brentlinger got out of his car, retreated to the rear of the car and fired five pistol shots at pickets.

Iowa High Court Temporarily Halts Trials Of Sioux Citians

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa Supreme Court has temporarily blocked the trials of two Sioux City, Iowa, men in connection with charges allegedly growing out of incidents connected with the strike against Iowa Beef Packers, Inc., at Dakota City, Neb.

Iowa Supreme Court Chief Justice C. Edwin Moore has issued a stay in proceedings in the case of Harold Johnson, 36, and Roger Harnack, 21.

The two have asked the high court to rule on their denial of a change of venue from Woodbury to Polk County. Justice Moore set a hearing here Jan. 21 on the writ of certiorari.

Fatal Shooting

Johnson is charged with murder and assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Nancy Nielson, 16, and the wounding of her sister Michaelen, 19.

Harnack is charged with setting fire to the garage of an Iowa Beef employe the same night as the shooting. He was arrested with Johnson at the Nielson apartment where the shooting occurred.

Both men, who pleaded innocent to the charges, had asked the Woodbury County district Court to move the trial from Sioux City to Des Moines. They contended that widespread coverage of the sporadically violent Iowa Beef strike has made it impossible for them to receive a fair trial in western Iowa.

However, the request was denied. A Sioux City judge ordered Jan. 13 that the trial be moved to Council Bluffs in Pottawattamie County. The trial was set for Jan. 27.

Harnack and Johnson currently are out on bond pending the Supreme Court hearing on their appeal.

Pork Producers Elect Sorenson

Dick Sorenson, Wayne swine producer, has been elected president of the Nebraska Pork Producers Association, succeeding Gerald Beattie of Sumner. Beattie, who has headed the group for the past two years, was elected to serve as the state representative on the National Pork Producers board of directors.

Robert Craft of Foster was elected vice president of the Nebraska association. Dr. Leo Lucas, University of Nebraska Extension swine specialist; Archie White, George A. Hormel Co., Fremont; and James Volk, Battle Creek swine producer, were reappointed as advisory directors for two-year terms.

Also approved in the 1970 budget was a $1,500 grant to the Southeastern Nebraska-Northeast Kansas (SENEK) swine test station near Wymore and a $1,000 grant for the University of Nebraska Station near Concord for further swine research.

Catholic Schools Closing In Spring

Randolph (UPI) — Parishioners at Randoph St. Frances Catholic Church have voted to discontinue operation of the church grade and high school at the end of the present school year.

A total of 321 persons voted for the closing and 92 against it.

Cited for reasons were the decreasing ability to obtain a sufficient number of nuns as teachers and increasing salaries.

The grade school went into operation in 1899 and the high school in 1914. Construction of a new grade and high school building in 1966 put the parish deeply in debt.

The students will attend public schools here.

Current enrollment at the grade and high school of the parish is 378.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A number of interesting things have been happening on the local scene of late. Much of this covers the field of transportation — either by foot or by auto or even snowmobile.

The City Council, for instance, has had some debate in regard to pedestrian and auto preference in the traffic light control system downtown. Complaint has been heard that the traffic signals do not give sufficient time to pedestrians.

Now, if you think about this, you know it is nonsense. The only thing wrong with the signal system is that pedestrians want everything their own way. The "walk" and "don't walk" signs are a real irritation because they are a discipline and most people don't like discipline. It is as simple as that.

They like the older system where you are not supposed to start walking on the flashing green light. They like it because there seems to be more solid green time in which to walk and because they can ignore the flashing green sign and walk right in the face of it.

Two things stop them with the "walk" and "don't walk" signs. One, such signs are more emphatic and two, they are enforced. Many times, a police officer will be found on the intersection where such controls are in use. You will get called on the carpet for walking against the "don't walk" sign but nobody bothers you if you walk against a flashing green light.

Also, a lot of people still don't understand the newer system. People complain that the light changes from "walk" to "don't walk" before they can get across the intersection. The thing is that there is nothing wrong with this — that's the way it's supposed to work.

If you have a foot in the crosswalk while the light says "walk," you should proceed on across the intersection, despite the fact that the light changes to "don't walk" just as you start across.

You are not supposed to start on "walk" and then turn around and go back when the thing changes to "don't walk." If you did that, many slow walkers would never get across the street. But the total "walk" time is plenty long to allow everyone waiting at the intersection to get going and make his crossing.

Have you ever seen pedestrians backed up and waiting in line to get up to the light and through the intersection. Of course not. On the other hand, cars are frequently jammed up and drivers forced to wait through two "go" lights in order to get through an intersection.

We would venture to say that never in the history of the city has a pedestrian had to wait through two "walk" lights to make one crossing. The situation is plainly a matter of pedestrian impatience, a fact that is evident daily on the streets.

By and large, Lincoln pedestrians are an inconsiderate lot, cheating on all the rules or laws and giving no thought whatsoever to the movement of traffic. They generally behave as though 60 seconds is a matter of life and death with them.

Pedestrian and traffic movement in Lincoln is well organized and the City Council would be well advised to leave it alone. If they get to meddling in that, they will end up with a mess on their hands.

A few words might be directed at drivers, too. Many of them are dull-minded when behind the wheel. They fail oftentimes to observe the law in regard to mandatory and optional turning lanes, cheat on the caution lights and fiddle around on the green lights.

Sometimes half the time on a green light will expire before the first car in line starts to make its crossing of the intersection. Some people will change lanes as though they occupied the only car within miles.

Granted a decent system, which we have, the other component in good movement of automobile and pedestrian traffic is human reaction and there isn't much the City Council can do about that.

Nigeria's Future Uncertain As Civil Insurrection Ends

WASHINGTON — Federal Nigeria has successfully ended the civil war and the existence of the secessionist state of Biafra—after nearly 31 months of fighting at a cost of perhaps two million lives and a billion dollars. But the problems that launched a struggle as bitter as that raging in Vietnam are unresolved by the bloodshed.

Starvation and the specter of genocide that have haunted the Biafran struggle for independence must be dealt with first. Even if Gen. Yakubu Gowon's victorious Federal regime prevents the slaughter of Biafra's Ibo-tribesmen and international agencies mobilize fast enough to feed the hungry in the occupied region, all the fears and threats that brought about the war will still be in evidence.

Tribal, religious and regional rivalries have not been resolved and, more than likely, have been deepened by the struggle. Economic recovery will be costly. The victorious Federal government has incurred debts to Britian, the Soviet Union and others.

When Nigeria became independent from Britain on Oct. 1, 1960, it was regarded as among the few African states with a chance of survival and eventual prosperity. With an area larger than France, a population of about 55 million people, a trained civil service by African standards and ample resources, including oil, Nigeria seemed to be a showcase for the benefits of enlightened colonialism.

But bubbling below the surface were tribal animosities, chiefly between the Yorubas in the west, the Moslem Hausas in the north and the sophisticated, Christian Ibos in the East. An Ibo-led coup overthrew the government in 1966, killing many Hausas. This was followed by a counter-coup led by Gen. Gowon, a northerner. Anti-Ibo riots exploded, and as many as 30,000 persons were killed.

Calling the September, 1966, slaughter the "final act of sacrifice Easterners would be called upon to make in the interest of Nigerian unity," Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, the military commander of the Eastern region, raised the banner of Biafran independence on May 30, 1967.

The conflict which followed was soon characterized by pictures of starving children on the front pages and television screens of the world. It was estimated last June that more than 1,000 Biafran children were dying daily. Relief efforts had only limited success.

The Civil War had international ramifications. Britian, and the Soviet Union lined up behind the Federal government, giving the Russians a toehold in black Africa. France supported Biafra, possibly out of a desire to needle the British, who were deeply troubled by the conflict.

With the end of the fighting, many nations which had followed a hands-off policy prepared to send aid to the stricken country. Immediately after the Biafran collapse, President Nixon ordered an additional $10 million in relief supplies to be sent to the occupied areas. The United States had already channeled $70 million in foodstuffs to Biafra.

Hope was being expressed for a peace that would unite all Nngerians. But Adeoye Lambo, a Nigerial psychiatrist, warned: "It will take two generations to cure the bitterness. Our grandchildren may see the end of it."

Lincoln Case Grinds On

The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Operating Rights recommendation that Frontier Airlines be granted a direct route between Lincoln and Chicago is a disappointing but not disastrous setback in this city's latest bid for improved commercial air service.

In a brief filed with the CAB examiner handling the Lincoln case, Robert M. Johnson, the bureau supported only Frontier's Chicago-Lincoln application while saying that there is no need presently for Lincoln-Minneapolis and St. Paul and direct Lincoln-St. Louis service, also proposed by Frontier. The bureau similarly turned thumbs down on an Ozark Airlines Lincoln-Chicago segment.

In looking at the recommendation — which amounts to a lot less than Lincoln is hoping for — it should be pointed out that the bureau, while a part of the Civil Aeronautics Board, does not have the final say. In an advisory capacity, the bureau is required to file a position on air service requests, but that position is not binding. It will be taken into account when the CAB hearing examiner forwards the Lincoln file and his recommendaion to the full board (as opposed to bureau) for action.

What is perculiar, also, is the left-handedness of the bureau's support of Frontier's proposed Lincoln-Chicago route. First, it makes it dependent on Frontier's not receiving a new route between Omaha and Chicago, which could be awarded in another CAB proceeding. Second, the bureau says that new Lincoln-Chicago service must be restricted to Chicago's O'Hare Airport, whereas the director of the Chicago airport commission testified at the preiminary CAB hearing that there is no way Frontier can get into O'Hare with a new route at the present time.

We further reflect that some two to three years ago, the Bureau of Operating Rights was in full support of Lincoln 's futile request to be included in the Omaha service case. Thus its attitude toward Lincoln now is inconsistent, at least.

Meanwhile, parties to the Lincoln service case are putting the finishing touches on briefs due in February, in preparation for the final test before the CAB.

A Calculated Risk

A defendant's appeal of his conviction on a charge of keeping gambling devices raises an interesting question. In the case, the charge was brought after police discovered the gambling equipment in the defendant's car. That discovery was made when police routinely searched the car after the driver had been arrested for intoxication.

A district court and the State Supreme Court have said that the search of the car and seizure of the gambling equipment were not unconstitutional under any illegal search-and-seizure provisions. Thus, the conviction on keeping gambling devices has stood.

The question is whether a search warrant is required in such situations and the court has said it is not. The ruling was hailed locally as an aide to police in fighting crime.

Many people would no doubt concur and agree that the ruling is correct. But we should be slow in actions that tend to erode our rights against illegal search.

The requirement for a search wrrant may somewhat restrain police officers in fighting crime. But its purpose is to protect the public. If cars can be searched without a warrant in the process of some other action, would it not be possible to use such authority unfairly? Could people not be stopped under one guise or another and their cars then searched?

And when do such things become, not tools to be used against the criminal, but means of harassment by the government against anyone singled out for such abuse? And when does harassment degenerate into a full-fledged police state? The questions raised in the Nebraska case to be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court are not to be lightly dismissed.

Nixon Holding Onto Ball As First Quarter Ends; Confusing Politics, Policies Could Bring Trouble

WASHINGTON — That incorrigible football buff, Richard M. Nixon, has come to the end of the first quarter with his "game plan" intact. Like his friend, Vince Lombardi of the Washington Redskins, he is sticking to fundamentals and controlling the ball.

It is sound first-quarter strategy: he has kept the ball on the ground and hidden whenever possible. No spectaculars; no heroes; no disastrous fumbles or penalties. Safe, steady, conservative, effective and dull.

The administration seems to be operating on a fairly rigid set of assumptions: none of its major problems can be settled in a hurry; therefore, it must play for time. The object is to stay in office through the Bicentennial of the Declaration of Independence in 1976; therefore it must look to its political defenses and play for a second term.

This is clearly a more confident team than when it took the field a year ago, for it is not only more experienced but feels that it is in tune with the conservative mood of the country.

☆ ☆ ☆

This conservative trend, the Nixon aides now feel, has actually been coming on for a longer time than most people realize. They reel off the facts:

Despite John F. Kennedy's striking television personality, Nixon polled 34,108,157 votes in 1960 — only 118,574 fewer than Kennedy.

Barry Goldwater frightened the voters with his dramatic views on the war and Social Security in 1964, and suffered a spectacular defeat, but even then the Republicans got over 27 million votes, and two years later, Ronald Reagan carried the conservative banner to a remarkable victory in California and will probably do the same this year.

In 1968, Nixon regained the White House for the Republicans with 43.4 per cent of the vote, but George Wallace of Alabama, who was to the right of everybody, polled almost ten million votes, so that between Nixon and Wallace, the conservatives got 56.9 of the total of 42.7 for the progressive Hubert Humphrey.

Morover, according to this thesis, the swing to the right is not only continuing but getting stronger, for the Republicans not only won the governorships of New Jersey and Virginia in 1969, but law and order candidates won the mayorships of Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Detroit, and while the conservatives lost to Mayor John Lindsay of New York, they won well over half the total vote.

This sort of thing naturally gives the administration the feeling that it will get a lot of support if it merely keeps banging away steadily to the right, especially since the Democrats are leaderless and the old geezer network in the Democratic-controlled house is sadly inept.

Nevertheless, there is a big difference between effective politics and effective policies, and Nixon, who concentrates on politics, could be confusing the two. For he is in deep trouble with the economy. He has slowed the rate of inflation, but it is still going up, and this could be his most serious problem in the mid-term elections later in the year.

Similarly, he has slowed the rate of the killing in Vietnam, but the war goes on, now into its eighth year, and the administration is beginning to give the impression that it has waged such an effective counter attack against the critics of the war that it is prepared to let the conflict loiter along about as it is. This may prove later in the game to be both poor policy and poor politics.

It is a very dangerous thing to believe that the blacks and the young protesters in general will adapt to Nixon's timetable. The clocks are ticking faster in the slums than on Wall Street and Main Street. Nixon seems to believe that his problem is with George Wallace rather than with the left and that he must defuse the Wallace movement rather than the radical movement, and he may be right but it is quite a gamble.

What is clear at the beginning of the second quarter is that the "forward together" part of his game plan has not succeeded. He has kept the Democrats off balance, but is still stuck with the war, inflation, inequality and crime he promised to control in the campaign, and the Democrats are now trying to regroup to make this clear.

"Mr. Nixon and Company," says Hubert Humphrey, "are putting band-aids on these wounds but not getting at the source of the trouble. They are mechanics, account executives. They are not artists of politics . . . They know how to manage but they have no creativity; in other words, they know how to lay bricks but have no vision of a cathedral."

With a little organ music, this could serve as the kick-off for the 1970 quarter, but Humphrey doesn't have the ball. It is still in the hands of the Republicans and they clearly intend to control it.

BOB CONSIDINE

Biafra, 20th Century Pawn

NEW YORK — "It hands me a laugh," the rugged missionary said with a trace of bitterness. "Nobody much would lift a hand to help us do our job in Biafra. But when Biafra fell, just about everybody came forward with offers to help. They fell over one another."

By "us" the exhausted man meant Joint Church Aid, the humanitarian effort of Protestant, Jewish and Catholic organizations to keep Biafran children and old people from death by starvation and kwashiokor, the disease that strikes down those deprived of protein. By "they" he meant the big powers.

He had been up half the night, listening with increasing anger and alarm to a smooth-talking Nigerian diplomat from the UN evading the pertinent questions of Barry Farber, the able conductor of a New York radio interview show. The diplomat, like his leader at home, Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, gave no positive assurances that the collapse of the Biafran armed forces and the flight of their commander, Gen. Ojukwu, would not be followed by pitiless reprisals against those who had dreamed of independence.

As Biafra fell, about 120 missionaries, mostly Irish, stayed with their missions.

If there is any disposition on the part of occupying Nigerian forces to heap revenge on Biafrans who opposed them ruggedly and resourcefully for two and a half years, the punishment could easily be extended to the whites from far-off lands who served as good Samaritans.

What happened to Biafra is a microcosm of what's wrong with man and his century.

The instrument of negotiations, peace and rehabilitation that was set up in the wake of World War II — the United Nations — did nothing substantial about Biafra during the long blockade and fight for survival. Secretary General U Thant's position, which generally reflects the do-nothingness of the world organization, was that this was a civil war and, therefore, the noble Charter contained no provisions for alleviating it.

The sad part of that is the Charter, a pledge as inspiringly worded as the Magna Carta and our own Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, has been torn and twisted out of all recognition by those who fashioned it so hopefully after the most disasterous war in history.

But when Biafra went down the drain, U Thant (who was in Africa and hardly an hour's flying time from Lagos) sent an appeal to Gen. Gowon to show "magnanimity and community spirit." Simultaneously, officials of the UN's best bureau, UNICEF, the Children's Emergency Fund, started belatedly to buy 120 trucks in the hope of running food and medicine in by road, hitherto sealed.

By the same token, Prime Minister Wilson, whose government's arms, ammunition, anti-aircraft guns, tanks, trucks, etc., brought about the capitulation, expressed concern and offered to send food to the conquered.

The Nixon administration, which had not wanted to become involved, any more than did the Johnson Administration, offered to send a cloud of loaded C-130's — if Gen. Gowon allowed such aid. There was also an offer of a $10 million U.S. loan to Gowon's government, to help speed up things. All of a sudden we seemed to be suffering from a bad conscience.

From a financial aspect, the chief losers in the war will be the French munitions makers and West German industrialists who have made fine profits selling arms to the desperate Biafrans for the past two years. Also, the well-paid Egyptian pilots who flew the Soviet-supplied Mig's and Ilyushins for the Nigerian air force, and concentrated their fire on unprotected refugee camps and market places. They will now presumably be asked to go back to Cairo and take on the alarmingly determined Israeli pilots in American-built F-4's.

Biafra was one of the pawns of the 20th century. Its eventual fate was sealed long before the pathetically dignified capitulation broadcast by Brig. Phillip Effiong, the chief of staff. He thanked the world for such aid as it was able or willing to give in the past, notably Pope Paul VI and the Joint Church Aid. He concluded, "May God help us all."

The tough missionary mentioned earlier, whose name it might be harmful to reveal, joins prayerfully in Effiong's supplication. But he added a thought.

"We lost," the holy man said with a glint. "But we sure gave it one hell of a try."

HARRIET TUBMAN

They Had A Dream

Harriet Tubman was one of the most fearless "conductors" on the Underground Railway, an escape route over which thousands of slaves fled to the North in the decade before the Civil War.

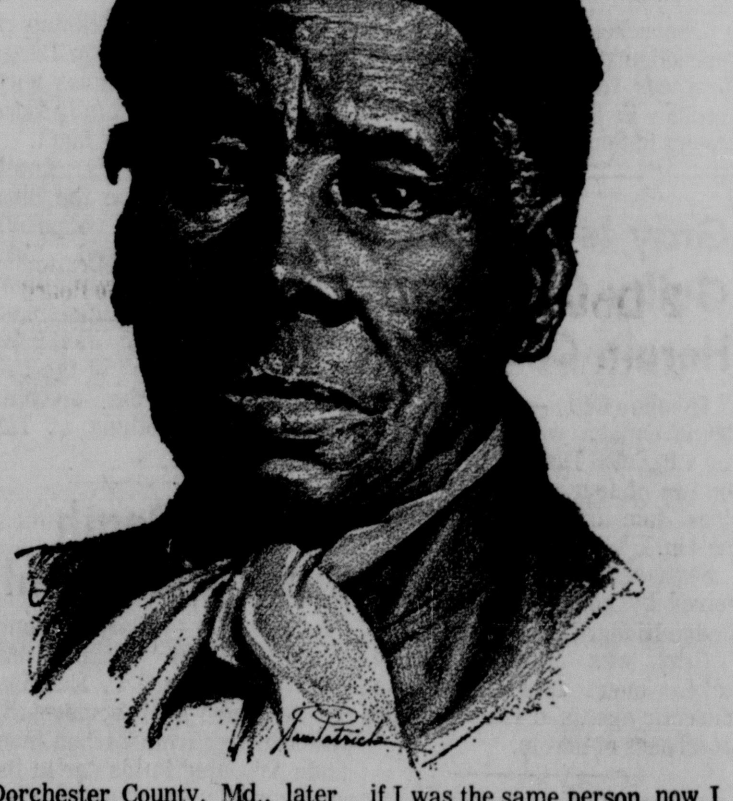
An escaped slave herself, Harriet repeatedly risked capture leading others to freedom. She made 19 journeys into the South and brought out more than 300 slaves.

Each trip became successively more dangerous as the reward for her capture mounted, eventually reaching $40,000. But Harriet, who had great faith in God, led a seemingly charmed life. She always outwitted her pursuers.

Harriet became a legend among the Southern blacks. She was known as the Moses of her people.

When the Civil War broke out, she used her talents in the Union Army. Her duties ranged from cook, laundress and nurse to guide, scout and spy.

☆ ☆ ☆



She was born Arminta Ross around 1820 on a plantation in Dorchester County, Md., later adopting the name Harriet. Both of her parents were slaves. Harriet, one of 11 children in her family, was small as a child but she did the work of a man. She plowed the fields, drove an oxcart and cut timber, and in her labor developed tremendous strength and stamina.

Around 1844, she married a free Negro named John Tubman, though she remained a slave. Deciding five years later to escape, she told her husband who refused to go with her:

"There's two things I've got a right to: death or liberty. One or the other I mean to have. No one will take me back alive."

Harriet left taking two of her brothers with her but they became frightened and turned back. She pushed on alone, traveling by night, and reached Pennsylvania and freedom in a couple of days. It was a moment she never forgot.

"I looked at my hands to see if I was the same person, now I was free. There was such a glory over everything. The sun came like gold through the trees and over the fields and I felt like I was in heaven."

☆ ☆ ☆

Harriet returned later for her husband to find he had married another woman. Eventually she lead her parents, a sister and two brothers out of bondage.

No one ever turned back on her again. She carried a pistol and told them they could move North — or die on the spot. "I nebber los' a passenger," she used to say.

After the war, Harriet settled in Auburn, N.Y., and married again. She applied for a military pension but it was 30 years before she got it. When it was granted, she used the money to found a home for the aged.

Harriet died in Auburn in 1913.

Tiemann Vetoes Suggestion To Call Session On Sewage

By Associated Press

Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann Friday vetoed the suggestion he call a special legislative session this year to provide financial aid to municipalities for construction of sewage treatment facilities.

The suggestion had come from the Nebraska League of Women Voters, which proposed 50% federal grants, 25% state aid and 25% local financing for secondary sewage treatment facilities. Presently the federal government will pay 30% of costs, and local communities pick up the remaining 70% of the bill.

Tiemann told his news conference he favors the state aid concept but would not call a special session for that purpose. He noted it would take six to eight months for designs and plans to be drawn for such projects, and it'll be 1971 before machinery and equipment would be available, "so the next regular session of the Legislature can handle this as one of their first items of business."

Value In Doubt

"I doubt that a special session (for this purpose) would be of any value and I doubt if we could get state aid through at this point," he said.

Referring in general to possibilities of a special Unicameral session this year, Tiemann said the Supreme Court's ultimate decision on a current test case to delineate legislative and executive powers in budgeting could "very easily" prompt a special session.

In any event, he said, he would limit the agenda to emergency matters.

With respect to Sarpy County's request for a special session to redistrict the state and give the county another state senator, Tiemann said he has asked an attorney general's opinion. Sought is advice on whether a 1936 court case which held that such redistricting must be done on a statewide basis rather than on a limited basis is still controlling, he said.

Bellevue School

Tiemann also disclosed he had been in contact with President Nixon about Bellevue's school problems.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate J. J. Exon of Lincoln had sent a telegram to Tiemann Thursday, noting that Tiemann "evidently" had done nothing about Bellevue's school problems while in Washington this week.

Tiemann said the subject was not discussed in Washington but he had written the President earlier on the matter.

Tiemann suggested Exon could save himself some money by picking up the telephone and calling the governor on some of these matters instead of sending telegrams.

Drug Control Memo Signed By Governor

By Associated Press

Nebraska Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann signed a memorandum of understanding with federal officials Friday to establish lines of jurisdiction in drug abuse control efforts.

Essentially the state, through the State Health Department's Bureau of Examining Boards, is given the major responsibility for control of drugs moving through legitimate channels.

Primary responsibility for control of illicit traffic in narcotic, depressant, stimulant and counterfeit drugs occurring outside legitimate retail channels is assigned to the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs of the U.S. Department of Justice, with cooperation from the Nebraska State Patrol.

State's Responsibility

The state's area of responsibility includes drug problems involving community and hospital pharmacies, dispensing practitioners and nursing homes.

Signing of the memorandum of understanding by state and federal representatives took place during the governor's Friday news conference.

Tiemann, in other news conference business, reported that his schedule for the coming week includes a town hall meeting at Falls City Monday night, a luncheon speech to the State Agricultural Council next Wednesday noon, and a dinner speech at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association in Lincoln next Thursday night.

Also announced by the governor were appointments to the new Nebraska Dairy Products Advisory Board, created by the 1969 Legislature. The board is assigned the responsibility of setting minimum wholesale, jobber and retail prices on dairy products under terms of a measure, LB964, chiefly sponsored by Sen. J. W. Burbach of Crofton.

Named To Board

Named to the advisory board were Joe Muller of the Alamito Dairy in Omaha, and Larry Liebers of Roberts Dairy in Lincoln, representing distributors; Bob Weary of York and Sam H. Davidson of Lincoln, representing retailers; Daniel J. Stevens of Fordyce and Howard W. DeFrain of Fairbury, representing Grade A Milk Producers, and Mrs. Delbert H. Pinkerton of Lincoln, member at large.

Gov. Tiemann reported the reappointment of Dr. William F Nye of Lincoln to another three-year term on the Board of Registration for Sanitarians, and named Fred H. Jolly of Omaha to a three-year term on the same board, succeeding Orville D. DeFrain of Lincoln, whose term expired.

Reappointed to one-year terms on the Weather Control Commission, created by the 1957 Legislature, were Orel Koelling of Ord, R. Douglas Bolin of Harrisburg, Kenneth Ahrens of Tekamah, and Leonard Vyhnalek of North Platte.

2 Douglas County Judges Sworn In

Two new Douglas County District judges were sworn in Friday at the Capitol by Supreme Court Chief Justice Paul White.

The new judges are James Buckley and Theodore Richling.

The two were appointed last month by Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

People Should Collect Ideas For Retirement

By ROBERT PETERSON

Was browsing in the public library the other day and came upon a book by Sidney Ross called "How to Enjoy Your Later Years."

The author said the first step in sensible retirement planning is to buy a blank notebook. "Label the notebook 'Retirement Ideas,' and then divide it into sections — finance, hobbies, new projects, and retirement locations. Have an envelope in each section to enclose provocative articles and clippings on the subject of retirement. Jot down your wife's ideas, too. With such a book you can plan intelligently, and then follow through when you quit working."

Among many tips in his book is a formula on how to read 20 new books a year. Ross claims that if you simply read 15 minutes a day, you'll be able to go through 20 books a year — thus enriching your mind and stimulating your fund of conversation.

Despite the claims of dietitians that everyone needs three well-balanced meals a day, may healthy elders simply observe food habits which they've found agree with them — and to heck with the experts.

When I talked with the late poet Robert Frost, I learned that for breakfast this venerable literary figure had nothing but a tall drink consisting of equal parts of coffee, milk and water, plus two teaspoons of white sugar. He said he had no luncheon at all, and that his main meal was in the evening, "Just an ordinary supper with some meat, vegetables and dessert like everyone eats."

His casual attitude toward food reminded me of another departed luminary, the late Pat Rooney. At a banquet I heard that noted song-and-dance man ask the waiter to take away the roast chicken dinner which was being served and bring him a hamburger. When I asked Rooney what was wrong with the chicken he said nothing agreed with him as well as hamburgers and that his diet for years had consisted almost entirely of hamburgers and coffee — a fact which I later confirmed by checking with his wife.

A dietitian who read my column about Rooney wrote saying such an unbalanced diet would kill a man. Well, maybe it did, for Pat Rooney finally died at the age of 84. Robert Frost's diet must have killed him, too, for he passed on at 88.

Court: Pilot Needn't Be Told Rudder Is Missing

By Associated Pres

An airplane repair man should not need to warn a pilot that the rudder on his craft has been removed, the State Supreme Court held Friday.

Affirmed by the high court was the verdict of a Chase County District Court jury, denying damages to Mrs. Evelyn Lock in a suit against the Packard Flying Service, Inc., operator of a repair service at the Imperial Municipal Airport.

Mrs. Lock's husband and three other persons owned an airplane. Employes of Packard Flying Service removed the rudder for the purpose of repairing it, but left the ignition key in the plane and did not warn that the rudder had been removed.

Mrs. Lock's husband failed to note the absence of the rudder and took off with Mrs. Lock as a passenger. The plane crashed and Mrs. Lock was injured.

The Supreme Court noted that federal aviation regulations make the pilot responsible for determining it a plane is safe to fly, and licensed pilots are charged with making preflight inspections and ascertaining that a plane is airworthy before taking off.

In an appeal from Dodge County, the Supreme Court spilt 5-2, with the majority affirming the district court in finding for the defendant, Bernard J. Riecken, administrator of the estate of Harold A. Riecken, in a traffic accident damage suit brought by Jean Johnson through her father, William Johnson.

The Dodge County case grew out of a July 18, 1967 accident on U.S. Highway 275 between Beemer and West Point. Three persons, including Harold Riecken, were killed in the accident, and the plaintiff, Jean Johnson, was seriously injured.

In other opinions Friday, the court:

—Upheld the robbery conviction in Douglas County of Richard James Leary, charged with holding up, in 1968, a grocery store operated by Mr. and Mrs. Simon Green.

—Concurred with the Douglas County District Court in setting aside a default judgment for $117.40 which it had entered in favor of Larry Urwin in an auto accident damage action against James R. Dickerson.

Suburbia Always Has Fun

Although we don't want to make any sweeping predictions about what the year 1970 holds in store for Lincoln's suburban populace, we have a feeling that if January has been setting the pace for the following 11 months, there will be very little time for just plain resting and relaxation. Of course, since Lincoln residents seem to thrive on activity of every variety, this thought should be a fairly pleasant one for all concerned.

Just to give an idea of how busy suburban dwellers have been during the very recent past we have news this morning of two festive birthday celebrations which took place in honor of one of the members of the younger generation. In addition to that are some details about residents who find that the winter months provide an excellent opportunity for travel (especially when it's to the sunny west coast, we might add!)

Without further ado then, we'll begin our coverage of what's been happening by relating the details of those birthday celebrations we mentioned. The recipient of all the birthday congratulations was Miss Lisa Martin, daughter of Lincoln Heights residents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin. It seems that Miss Martin joined the ranks of "almost-teen-ager" last Sunday when she became a 12-year-old.

Lisa began her observance of the occasion a trifle early — on Saturday, to be exact, when she had a group of friends over for a party. The festivities began with an afternoon of roller skating and were concluded with a pizza party later that evening.

On hand to take part in the fun were Linda Meiers, Elizabeth Christensen, Susan Pavelka, Foster.

A family celebration was on the Sunday agenda when Lisa was honored at a dinner at her home. Guests at that particular celebration were Lisa's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Schickley of Omaha and of course, her brother, Alan, and sisters, Andrea and Chris.

Recently returning to Lincoln following a month-long vacation on the west coast were Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff Peterson. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson boarded the plane on Friday, Dec. 12, for a flight to San Francisco, where they spent five days. During their stay in that particular city they especially enjoyed sightseeing and visiting with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cooke and children, Sandra, Michael and Lori; and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Camprath and daughter Elizabeth.

From San Francisco, it was on to Seattle, Wash., where they spent the Christmas holidays as the guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Peterson. Also present for the family get-together were Mr. and Mrs. Peterson's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shearer and their children, Mark and Betty, of Bremerton, Wash. Incidentally, we understand that Mr. and Mrs. Peterson especially enjoyed getting acquainted with their newest grandchild, four-month-old Tony Peterson who, of course is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Peterson.

Before returning to Lincoln Mr. and Mrs. Peterson stopped in Great Falls, Mont., for a New Year's celebration and weekend stay with Mr. Peterson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Peterson.

Friday Wedding

The wedding of Miss Helen Kypke, formerly of Lincoln, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. August Kypke of Murdock and Rodney Mather, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernal Mather of Weeping Water, took place on Friday evening, Jan. 16, at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Murdock. The Rev. John F. Boerger solemnized the 8 o'clock ceremony before a background of lighted candles and arrangements of white gladioli. Mrs. John Boerger played the wedding music, and Miss Vicli Koterzina was the vocal soloist.

Mrs. Myron Shaulik of Riverton, Wyo., was her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmatron was Mrs. Larry Foster of Lincoln. Their alike frocks were designed with Empire bodices of ruby red velvet beneath which the floor-length, A-line skirts were of pink chiffon over taffeta. The matron of honor carried a single, large pink chrysanthemum, and the bridesmatron carried white chrysanthemums.

Charles Miller of Weeping Water served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Norman Kypke, Terry Mather, Michael Mather, both of Weeping Water, and Myron Shaulik of Riverton, Wyo.

The bride appeared in a gown of peau taffeta and lace. The Empire bodice, designed with a bateau neckline and long, lace-cuffed sleeves, was patterned with lace, and the lace was repeated in wide, vertical bands on the floor-length A-line skirt. A lace bordered court train, caught at the shoulders and extending into cotillion length, gave back interest to the gown. A cluster of sequins and pearls held in place her shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mr. Mather and his bride will reside at 307 West O St., in Weeping Water.

The bride is a graduate of the Reece and Sybil Beauty School in Lincoln.

CLOTHES HAVE AGE, BEAUTY

By ENID NEMY

(C) New York Times News Service

New York — There's practicality, but not much chic, in wearing a dress a year or two old. Transpose the years into decades and it's another matter.

The women who cherish, and still wear, dresses that were made 25 or more years ago (an unsurprising number of these designs are labeled Mainbocher, Mme. Gres and Chanel) usually do so for reasons unrelated to economy ("mind you, that's nice too," said one of them.)

Often nostalgia and sentiment are involved in the decision to keep a dress, but there are also far more tangible reasons. Construction, quality of fabric and the timelessness of the design are the three most frequently mentioned.

There is also a feeling of smugness. How many women can watch each succeeding year go by wearing the same dress size?

"My figure hasn't changed in 30 years and I keep clothes because my taste is simple enough so it doesn't change every six months," said Mrs. Moss Hart who is known to television viewers as Kitty Carlisle.

Mrs. Hart, whose "best dress" is a 25-year-old black silk velvet gown by Hattie Carnegie, said she had never been swayed by "faddy things."

She still wears Valentina's coral wool tunic dress lined in pink silk and made almost two decades ago, and a Valentina bias-cut black crepe "midi" of similar vintage.

"Aren't they heaven?" she commented.

Among the old favorites that Mrs. Lewis Lapham particularly enjoys is a 1954 Chanel blazer suit of dark blue jersey, and a "nifty" pepper and salt tweed suit by the same designer.

"They never go out of style and my husband loves them," she said. Her husband is a vice chairman of Bankers Trust Company.

Another perennial in her wardrobe is a 15-year-old short evening dress by Mainbocher.

"The hem's been up and down, up and down," she said.

Mrs. John Morris describes her old dresses as "the loves of my life" and at the top of the list is the first Mainbocher given her by her husband. An investment broker and race horse owner.

She has since received three Mainbocher designs a year as birthday, anniversary and Christmas gifts. But none of them has supplanted the 1942 black crepe and lace.

Not all the almost 80-plus Mainbochers she has worn over the years still hang in her closet, but a good percentage do.

"They can't all be wows," she said philosophically. "But there are quite a few special ones."

Mrs. William Buckley Jr. had two black velvet dresses by Christian Dior in her trousseau when she was married in 1950. One had an oval neckline and "practically no front" and the other a high neckline and "practically no back."

"They were considered risque then," she said. "I can remember the argument with my mother when I ordered them."

Mrs. Buckley, whose husband is editor of the National Review, added that "those Dior dresses were built, not made."

Mrs. Rene Bouche, widow of the artist, was often used as a model by her late husband and was frequently sketched in a Chanel suit. She still has 10-year-old Chanels and wears them in England.

She also wears her Mme Gres evening clothes "almost indefinitely."

Another disciple of Mme. Gres is Mrs. Howeth Townsend Ford, wife of a real estate executive. Her favorite is a black jersey gown ordered in 1952.

Mrs. William Cahan said she wears dresses "until they come back into style."

"I have a divine Chinese damask evening coat that I've worn since 1949," she said. "Last year I gave in and had it cut to day length and I could kick myself now."

Mrs. Cahan, executive vice president of the Museum of the City of New York, recently pulled out of her closet a tweed midicape designed by Pauline Trigere about 12 years ago. She just might change the buttons, she said, "but otherwise it's perfect."

Who will be the winner after the last vote has been tabulated is, at the moment, anybody's guess. No one will know the answer until Saturday evening, Feb. 14, when the Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing will hold its traditional "Sweetheart Ball" at Hotel Lincoln.

We are told that the theme this year is to be "The Sweetheart Tree, and that the party is to be quite a gala affair.

Washington's Current Social Life

BY WARREN WEAVER, JR.
(c) New York Times Service

Washington — After a full year's occupancy of the seat of power, the Nixon administration's social imprint on the capital is so faint as to be almost wraithlike.

Democratic Washingtonians, deposited here in great natural beds by the retreating Kennedy and Johnson eras, find it puzzling, even a little irritating, that the Republicans have proved so difficult to observe as a social entity. The fact is that they are rarely visible except at work.

For the Nixon men do not live in the fashionable neighborhoods where high-ranking White House and Cabinet figures did before. They are only occasionally seen in the old "In" restaurants, and they have not established any new ones of their own.

They do not entertain with a scale or frequency that invites the attention of this curious community. They are not inclined to include in their relatively small gahterings members of the Washington press corps who spread the social word. Taken as a whole, the administration simply doesn't choose to mingle.

This Republican insularity, which may fade as the administration ages and mellows, has some modest importance as a fact of government. But it is more interesting to residents of this fiercely political city because the President and his men set the tone of their time, socially as in all other respects.

So the keen watchers of Washington manners have been anxious to see what would succeed the barbecue aura of the earlier Johnson years. Just as that atmosphere followed the youthful style and culture that came to the capital with John F. Kennedy.

A well-known columnist who rose to prominence in the Kennedy era was asked by a friend the other day if he found himself excluded from the social affairs of the Nixon administration because of his liberal Democratic background.

"I worried about that at first," he replied, "so I decided to do a little research into why my wife and I weren't being invited to the parties. I found out the answer was very simple there weren't any parties."

This, of course, is an exaggeration, but from the traditional Washington viewpoint, not a very large one. The Nixon socializing is described by one participant as "a sort of cookout proposition," and by another as "not anti-social but not swinging social."

Local analysis of society regard the housing patterns of the Nixon people as particularly significant. With an astonishing consistency, they have either found transient quarters in elegant apartments and hotels or fled the city for the suburbs.

The most impressive personal housing symbol of the Nixon administration is the watergate, a big, relatively new cooperative apartment overlooking the Potomac just above Memorial Bridge.

Living at the $70 million project, where some apartments run as high as $300,000, are such cabinet members as Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe and Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

Clustered there also are Emil Mosbacher, the new State Department protocol chief; Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's confidential secretary, and a number of other prominent Republican newcombers, including Mrs. Claire Chennault, a Nixon political fund-raiser and enterprising hostess.

A significant segment of the Nixon leadership is living in Washington hotels. George Romney, the secretary of housing and urban development, is at the Shoreham, overlooking Rock Creek Park. The roster at the Sheraton Park includes Vice-President Agnew, Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel and Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard.

White House aides and cabinet and subcabinet officers of the new administration are dotted all over the Virginia suburbs and, to a lesser extent, in Maryland, but they are hard to discover within the District of Columbia and in Georgetown, an early American enclave that was the social focus of the Kennedy years.

On the social circuit, the administration has put forward a small handful of what one Washington hostess calls ambassadors to the Georgetown set," men who appear at the parties given by the hardy remnants of the Democratic years.

These ambassadors include Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Finch, who qualifies as the chief Nixon liberal; Dr. Henry Kissinger, the White House foreign policy adviser who is much in demand as (a) important and (b) single; and Daniel Patrick Moynihan, counselor to the President, who commutes weekly from his home in Cambridge, Mass.

The leading — possibly the only — candidate for the title of administration hostess is Margot Hahn, the young, attractive wife of the Republican millionaire whom Nixon named as president of the District of Columbia city council.

Attracting more Washington attention, however, is a strictly non-Nixonian hostess, Barbara Howar, who rose to social notoriety in the Johnson years and has now combined entertaining with aiding worthy causes.

Some Washingtonians say the Nixon social pattern is not really so different from the Johnson day , when a relatively small cadre of Texans entertained the President, his close aides and each other privately, without benefit of publicity and with only a couple of trustworthy columnists allowed entry as ambassadors from the press corps.

Much like the men he has brought to the capital with him, Nixon entertains at home. The formal social schedule at the White House has been extensive, but there has been little or nothing outside. Aides could only recall the Nixons making one visit to a private party, the 85th birthday celebration of Alice Roosevelt Longworth. They stayed 45 minutes.

In one social department, the Nixon White House has surpassed all its predecessors, placing 39 names in the 1969 supplement to the social list of Washington, the unofficial Register of Local Acceptability, for an increase of more than 50 per cent over the last count during the Johnson administration.

Research indicated however, that this did not really signal an upsurge of social status with the arrival of the Republicans, as much as the fact that Nixon has more aides with titles that seem to rate such recognition than did Johnson or any president before him.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Declarer starts the play of most hands with only limited knowledge of how the opponents' cards are divided. But as play progresses he learns more and more about the unseen hands, and as a result he can in some deals perform really marvelous deeds.

Take this deal where South performed nobly indeed. West led the king of spades and shifted to a trump. Declarer won in dummy and played a club to the jack. He hoped that East, despite his pass of one spade, would have the queen, in which case the knave would force the ace.

But West won with the queen and continued with the ace and another club, which South ruffed. Declarer then drew two more rounds of trumps, followed by a low diamond to the ten, which won. Pursuing his quest for more information, South ruffed dummy's last club.

When West followed suit, South had all the knowledge he required to make the hand. He played the three of diamonds to the ace, felling the king, and thus made the contract. Had he made the more normal lead of the queen in order to repeat the previously successful finesse, he would have lost a diamond and gone down one.

It is highly interesting to follow South's reasoning on the hand, for it gave him positive proof that West had the doubleton king of diamonds .He knew that if West had held ♠AK10x ♥xx ♦Kxx ♣AQ109 he would have opened the bidding with a club, not a spade. This would be the proper suit to bid with such a hand.

Since West had opened with a spade, it followed that he had five spades and hence only two diamonds.

This conclusion proved to be eminently correct. It also demonstrated the power of positive thinking.

Abby

great teen-agers

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We hear so much about the disgusting behavior of our nation's youth. We never seem to hear about the "silent majority" who are not troublemakers.

I would like to relate our experience: A month ago, our 17-year-old son died of leukemia. While the response of our friends was overwhelming, it came nowhere near that of the teen-agers in our community. These youngsters took it upon themselves to make two collec- their school colors, and another flowers for the casket — in their school colors, and another ($400) to be given to leukemia research in our son's name.

As if that were not enough, every day, since the funeral, some of his schoolmates have stopped by to visit us and ask if they can be helpful. The high school has virtually adopted our 11-year-old son as their "mascot." They have secured special permission for him to ride the band bus, play in the band, and to participate in half-time activities.

Our experience has convinced us that if the youth of our community is an example of the younger generation, we have nothing to fear in leaving the world in their capable hands. Sincerely,

NORMA

DEAR NORMA: I agree. There are many young people of whom we can be very proud. And judging from the way those teen-agers rallied 'round you and your family, I would say that you son was surely one of them.

DEAR ABBY: What does a mother do when strangers stop in a supermarket to admire her baby, and they have the audacity to touch the baby's face! Men will put their finger out for my daughter to grab it. I don't know how clean some of these men are, and you know babies will put their own fingers right into their mouths.

I enjoy having people admire my child, but I don't want them spreading germs all over her. My daughter rides in the infant seat in the shopping cart, and it is so easy for someone to get to her. One lady actually bent down and kissed her on the forehead.

I have tried carrying the baby, but I have a bad back. In the laundromat I've had people ask, "MAY I HOLD HER?" and take her from me without waiting for an answer!

Please put this in your column before Thursday, as I market then. and Friday is my laundry day. Thank you.

ARKANSAS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Since most strangers who become overly affectionate toward children in supermarkets do so impulsively, this probably won't help much, but it's worth mentioning.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get if off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

What makes a champion? What is that extra force inherent in a great leader, teacher, musician, scientist, or a Christian? This extra force, this compelling quality, this something has a current all its own . . . out-shining our every-day efforts. It turns the common into the outstanding. It has been called "inspiration" and surely it must be just that. Want to possess it??? Of course! – then keep an open heart, a clear unprejudiced mind, clean body, and a receptiveness to the will and word of God. Learn of Him through regular church attendance and daily reading of His word. Only through God may we find this something, – this force, – this inspiration. "There is a spirit in man: and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."

Education Board Argues About Miller

By United Press International

The State Board of Education got into a heated squabble Friday over whether former Education Commissioner Floyd Miller had mishandled the investment of trust fund money.

Frank Landis, a board member from Lincoln, demanded that Board President Allen P. Burkhardt of Norfolk retract a charge that up to $14,000 in interest had been "lost" because Miller failed to invest $86,000 in trust funds for the state schools for the blind and deaf.

Landis accused Burkhardt of doing "a disservice to a fine man."

He said Miller did not have authority to invest the money in securities. He said the state treasurer had invested the money, with the interest going back to the state general fund instead of to the schools.

'Not Sorry'

"I'm not the least bit sorry I brought this to light," Burkhardt said.

Burkhardt said he did not know if Landis was correct about Miller's authority, adding "all I know is that Miller never called it to our attention."

Miller was fired by the board last spring in a controversy not related to the investment. He is now on the faculty of Mankato State College in Minnesota. Burkhardt was among those voting to oust him.

Landis said a 1965 attorney general's opinion told Miller he had no authority to make the investment. Miller went to the 1967 Legislature for authority, he said. However, the Unicameral created a state investment board and did not put it into operation until 1969. As a result, the Department of Education could not invest the funds itself.

'Nothing Lost'

"Not one penny was lost for the taxpayers," said Norman Otto of Millard. "Interest earnings just went into the state general fund instead of the trust funds."

Burkhardt said he had only been on the board since 1967 and was not fully aware of the background since the problem began in 1965.

Otto said Burkhardt would find references to the trust fund if he checked the minutes of board meetings since his election. He told Burkhardt he should have checked before making his charges public.

"Well, you look it up in the minutes," Burkhardt shot back.

Members 'Derelict'

John Londay of Omaha, who also was not on the board in 1965, said members had been "utterly derelict" for not following up the matter.

He said he didn't know whether Burkhardt, Miller or Landis was right, but someone should have pursued the issue.

"We act like a bunch of stupid kids when we conduct business here. I mean it," he said.

John Wagoner of Grand Island said he would take the responsibility for not following through. Aware of conflicts in the 1967 bills, Wagoner said he asked for an attorney general's ruling, but didn't know if one had ever been received.

Lincoln Winner Of Scholarship Left Out Of List

The name of one recipient of a four-year Regents scholarship was not included in the list released by the University of Nebraska this week.

He is Joseph Max Harvey, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milroy A. Harvey of 3312 So. 42nd. He is a senior at Lincoln Southeast High School.

This brings to 99 the number of Nebraska high school seniors who have been awarded four-year, full-tuition scholarships to attend the university.

'Never Give Up,' Say Police After Yablonski Killers

Clarksville, Pa. (AP) — State Police Capt. Joseph Snyder said Friday his men have questioned more than 600 persons in efforts to solve the murders of Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, United Mine Workers insurgent leader, and his wife and daughter.

Snyder, who heads a team of 50 investigators had no significant progress to report but said: "We'll never give up on this one."

Meanwhile the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Department of Labor were conducting related probes. An FBI spokesman said, "It's an all-out investigation," nationwide for his agency.

Steering Panel To Recommend Indian Commission Membership

By KEN NEUNDORF
Star Staff Writer

A 10-member steering committee to recommend the membership on a proposed State Indian Commission was established Friday in a meeting between Gov. Norbert Tiemann and representatives of Nebraska's Indians.

After an initial disagreement between some reservation and urban Indians, the committee was formed with two representatives from each of Nebraska's three tribes, one representative from Lincoln, two from Omaha and one from western Nebraska.

Tiemann appointed Donald La Pointe of the Santee Sioux tribe as chairman of the group, which plans to meet Jan. 29 in Lincoln to work out its recommendations.

First Step

The Friday meeting was the first step in forming the Indian commission, an idea voiced at a town hall meeting Tiemann held at Winnebago last fall.

Tiemann told the Indians that state government needs guidance in dealing with Nebraska's Indians and that "it is my hope this commission can give that guidance."

The governor said the state has given only "piecemeal effort" to Indian problems in the past, but with the formation of the Indian commission, "I think we could give more serious consideration to these serious problems."

In a discussion of goals of the commission, several representatives mentioned aiding the governor in initiating programs in education, civil rights, health, law enforcement, housing and other fields.

Serve As Watchdog

The commission could also serve as a watchdog over legislation that concerns both reservation and urban Indians, the representatives said.

Edward Kline, chairman of the Omaha tribe, said the group could "not only keep a watchful eye on the state of Nebraska but also keep a very close eye on the federal government."

Kline said the commission could join with the U.S. Public Health Service in improving health care for Indians.

'Need Little Push'

"I'm sure they're trying to attack the problems,' but maybe they need a little push here and there," he said.

Richard Hoch, legal counsel to the governor, said the Nebraska commission will be the first state Indian commission composed of Indians.

Sam Cornelius, state technical assistance director, said he hopes either federal technical assistance funds or research and demonstration funds can be obtained for the commission's budget.

Cornelius proposed that the Office of Economic Opportunity be asked for $24,350 for the first year's budget, a sum that Cornelius described as about average.

Fulltime Director

That would include a maximum of $14,000 for a fulltime director, $4,000 for a secretary and other sums for travel and fixed expenses.

Hoch said his office has already received letters from several Indians with degrees in social work in regards to the position of director.

Named to the steering committee were Gordon Kitto and Donald La Pointe of the Santee Sioux, Felix White and Gordon Beaver of the Winneago tribe, Leonard Springer and Edward Kline of the Omahas, Oliver Saunsoci of Lincoln, Peter Thomas and Marion Peniska of Omaha and Carl Janis of Alliance.

Home Court Theory On Line In Buff-Husker Tilt

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska' basketball team, which proved Tuesday night that losing at home isn't as difficult as most Big Eight teams have made it look this season, must find that home court advantage tonight or drop into sole possession of the Big Eight basement.

The Huskers, who lost a two-point squeaker on the road at Iowa State, then were soundly whipped by Kansas State, 71-64, at home Tuesday night, will play host to Colorado in a 7:35 p.m. contest at the NU Coliseum tonight.

Many observers claim the cozy NU Coliseum gives the Huskers a 12-point advantage before the first ball is thrown up. If that's the case, tonight's game rates as a tossup. Colorado defeated coach Joe Cipriano's club by 12, 72-60, in the Big Eight tourney at Kansas City last month.

Only two losses have been suffered at home by Big Eight teams this season, both losses coming in conference games with Oklahoma State losing to Missouri at Stillwater and Nebraska losing to K-State in Lincoln.

Those losses have helped the Cowboys and Huskers to claim a share of last place in the Big Eight standings with 0-2 records and since Oklahoma State doesn't play tonight, the Husker could take sole possession of the bottom with a loss.

Poor shooting and worse rebounding was the formula used by Cipriano's cagers to lose Tuesday night's game to K-State, shooting only 34% and being out-rebounded by 40-27.

Sophomore Chuck Jura, the tallest man on the court at 6-10, could get only three rebounds against the Wildcats.

Cipriano said he was pleased with his team's defensive effort against Kansas State, but said they took too many bad shots and made too many mistakes on offense.

"The reason for the poor shooting was a lack of patience and too many poor shots," he said. "We had no leadership from some of our older player ."

Colorado, the pre-season choice to win the Big Eight, brings only a 7-5 mark into tonight's game, the league opener for the Buffs, whose last outing was a 65-61 loss to Creighton at Omaha Monday night.

Colorado is led by Cliff Meely, last year's Big Eight Player of The Year who scored 27 against the Huskers in the Big Eight tourney.

The NU frosh put their 4-1 record on the line against North Platte Junior College at 5:15.

Alignment Rendered By Lottery

New York (AP) — Pro football's 13-team National Conference completed realignment Friday after eight months of sporadic meetings with a lottery-type draw that left Chicago, Green Bay, Detroit and Minnesota cold and unhappy in one of the three new divisions.

The end to the mammoth problem came at 10:26 a.m., CST, after 64 hours and 41 minutes of actual meetings, when five plans submitted by Commissioner Pete Rozelle were placed in a cut glass flower vase and a blind draw made by his secretary.

The draw left the Midwest teams, who had campaigned for the addition of a warm-weather city to their linepup, linked together as they were last season without relief from what they have considered their major problem.

"There is some unhappiness," Rozelle admitted, "but I talked to the owners and they thought it was a fair shot and a satisfactory solution."

The plan pulled out of the flower vase left pro football with the following alignment beginning with the 1970 season:

National Conference

East Division — Dallas, New York Giants, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington.

Central Division — Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay and Minnesota.

Western Division — Atlanta, Los Angeles, New Orleans and San Francisco.

American Conference

East Division — Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Miami and New York Jets.

Central Division —Cincinnati Cleveland, Houston and Pittsburgh.

West Division — Denver, Kansas City, Oakland and San Diego.

Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh moved from the existing 16-team National Football League to the 10-team American Football League on May 10, forming the two 13-team conferences that will form the structure of the sport for the 1970s.

The 13 members of the American Conference immediately announced their division line-up, but the 13 teams remaining to form the National Conference were unable to agree until Rozelle intervened Friday morning.

Beginning with the 1970 season, each team in a five-team division will meet the other clubs in its division on a home-and-home basis; play three of the other eight teams in its conference, and cross into the other conference for another three games.

Each team in a four-team division will meet the other clubs in its division on a home-and-home basis; play five of the other eight teams in its conference, and cross in to the other conference for another three games.

Each team thus would continue to play a 14-game schedule, the same as under the old set-up.

Rozelle said his decision to hold the lottery-type draw came after the owners "could not reach unanimous consent on any one plan. I felt we had explored every other possibility and there didn't seem to be any way the owners were going to get unanimous consent on any plan or any plan of action.

"In effect I did it without their consent. There was never any formal or informal concurrence by the 13 owners."

Rozelle then listed his five different realignment plans on a blackboard and a tag for each was placed in the flower vase. Rozelle's secretary, Thelma Elkjer, reached in —and the persistent problem was licked after she picked Plan 3.

Rozelle emphasized that the main factor in each plan was maintaining traditional rivalries such as those between New York, Philadelphia and Washington; Chicago and Green Bay; and Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"We could have," Rozelle emphasized, "lived with any one of the five plans very well."

Coaches Expect Top Scoring In Final AFL All-Star Game

Houston, Tex. (AP) — Rival coaches said Friday they expect a high scoring affair in the 10th and final American Football League All-Star Game.

Today's Astrodome contest, set to begin at 1 p.m. CST, will be the final event in the 10-year history of the AFL which will become the American Conference of the merged AFL and National Football League next season.

The West, coached by Lou Saban of Denver, has been tabbed the favorite, and George Wilson, of Miami, coach of the East, agreed.

However, Saban doesn't see it that way. He said neither side has a decided advantage in personnel.

"The winner will be the one who makes the fewest mistakes," Saban said.

"The team whose quarterback is the hottest is going to win the game," Wilson said. Saban said it would be more of a "throwing game rather than a running game."

"I hope it will be high scoring," Wilson said. "That's what the crowd wants."

John Hadl of San Diego will start at quarterback for the West with Mike Livingston of Kansas City as his backup. Wilson will use Mike Taliaferro of Boston and Jack Kemp of Buffalo at quarterback with Taliaferro getting the starting nod.

The East's receivers include Haven Moses of Buffalo, Ron Sellers of Boston, George Sauer of New York and Jim Beirne and Alvin Reed of Houston.

Among Wilson's stable of running backs are Matt Snell of New York, Carl Garrett of Boston, O. J. Simpson of Buffalo and Jim Kiick of Miami.

Hadl and Livingston will have as receivers Lance Alworth of San Diego, Fred Biletnikoff and Billy Cannon of Oakland, Willie Frazier of San Diego and Al Denson of Denver.

West running backs include Robert Holmes of Kansas City, Floyd Little of Denver, Dick Post of Oakland and Paul Robinson of Cincinnati.

The East lost another player to injuries Friday when it was disclosed that linebacker George Webster of Houston injured an ankle in Thursday's practice.

Webster was tabbed as a starter but Harry Jacobs of Buffalo will start in his place. Garland Boyette of Houston was added to the East squad to replace Webster.

Several other players who originally were selected were unable to participate because of injuries sustained in regular season. These included such stars as quarterbacks Joe Namath of New York, Len Dawson of Kansas City, Daryl Lamonica of Oakland, and New York flanker Don Maynard.

Each member of the winning team will receive $1,500 and the losers $1,000.

A crowd of about 35,000 is expected for the game which will be televised nationally.

Mustangs Seek Reinstatement

Omaha (UPI) — General Manager Jack Payne said Friday a check has been forwarded to the Continental Football League for $2,909.45 and the Omaha Mustangs would seek reinstatement for the 1970 season.

The check represents $2,000 paid the league last year as an assessment, but later borrowed back for trips to Indiana and Alabama. The balance was an assessment for the 1969 playoff.

Payne made the announcement after a meeting with J. J. Vinardi who owns over 80 per cent of the Mustang stock.

The payment had to be made in order for the Mustangs to continue their franchise. Payne said the organization would now work toward financing and organizing the 1970 club.

The Mustangs have no more obligations until a league meeting in Memphis next month, Payne said, but they must meet all requirements for 1970 by then.

Game, Parks Commission Gives Muncie Top Post

The members of the governing body of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission met Friday and named M. M. (Milt) Muncie of Plattsmouth as the new chairman for 1970.

Muncie

Jim Columbo of Omaha was named vice chairman.

The group approved district boundary revisions that followed the recommendations of the State Planning Commission and "more nearly equalize the work load," according to Commission Director M. O. Steen.

Prime changes in the revision were to add a block of five counties to District I, headquartered in Alliance; and to take away three counties from the jurisdiction of District 4, headquartered at North Platte.

Present at the meeting in the Statehouse Friday were Muncie, Columbo, Bruce Cowgill of Silver Creek, Francis Hanna of Thedford, outgoing member Charles Wright of McCook, and new member Bill McNair of Imperial. McNair, a Democrat, is taking the place of Wright on the commission.

The commissioners routinely approved vouchers for October and November, as they had not met during December, as well as okaying financial statements and personnel changes.

They held a long discussion on purchase policy, eventually determinig that it should stay as it is now; and approved the printing of 100,000 "Where The Fish Are" brochures for the Information Division at a cost of approximately $3,800.

The next meeting of the commissioners was set for Feb. 20.

Novak, Damkroger Pep Northeast Win, 62-57

. . . FREE THROW LINE MAKES DIFFERENCE

Old reliables Tom Novak and Maury Damkroger and newcomer Jim Sinner rescued Lincoln Northeast Friday night as the Rockets rallied to stop Lincoln High, 62-57, at Pershing Auditorium.

They delivered the key points down the frantic stretch run as the Rockets squared accounts with the Links to avenge their only loss in six starts.

Lincoln High had prevailed in a 62-60 overtime battle in December.

After Lincoln High took its first lead at 32-31 on the opening basket of the second half and the score was tied five times in the third quarter it looked very much like overtime might be in the picture again.

The Links, who had trailed by 10 points in the opening quarter and by nine in the second quarter were in front 51-49 midway in the final period when Novak put the Rockets ahead to stay.

The veteran backcourt leader tied the game at 51-51 on a shot from the corner with 4:43 left and gave Northeast a lead it was never to relinquish as he drove the baseline and scored from point-blank range with 3:04 remaining.

Damkroger then made it 55-52 and after Sam Sharpe had converted a pair of free throws with 1:33 left to make it 55-54 Sinner quickly countered with a 15-foot jumper to hike the lead back to three points.

Then the Rockets salted it away at the free throw line with Novak, Sinner and Greg Wright cashing free throws in the last 1:12 to hand fourth-ranked Lincoln High its third loss in seven games.

The Links looked like they might never get close in the opening three minutes as Northeast bolted to a 11-1 lead behind Damkroger, Novak and Wright.

But Ken Adkins, working effectively on the offensive board, got the Links untracked and they cut the gap to 19-14 at the quarter.

After Northeast jumped in front 25-16 Sam Sharpe's outside gunnery and Ron Peery's inside work enabled the Links to run off nine straight points and from that moment on it was anybody's game.

The Links utilized excellent rebounding by Peery, Adkins and Ralph Henderson to get back into contention. In one eight-minute stretch extending from midway in the second quarter to midway in the third quarter the Rockets scored only three times from the field and the Links were hogging the rebounds.

But Adkins departed with five fouls with 2:52 left in the third quarter and Henderson bowed out with 5:35 left in the fourth period. Between times the Rockets had lost 6-5 John Strain so Peery and Damkroger were left to battle for domination of the boards down the stretch.

Either team could have taken the worry out of being close by better work at the free throw line. The Rockets were 16-29 and the Links 19-30.

Like everything else, the scoring was even. Damkroger, Novak and Peery all finished with 19 points to share game honors.

The Links play again tonight, meeting Omaha Central at Johnson Gym, while Northeast is idle until next weekend.

Knights Squeak Past GI

Grand Island — Joe Harvey's tipin of a free throw with one minute remaining gave Lincoln Southeast a 54-52 victory over Grand Island here Friday night.

The victory moved the Knights of coach Wally McNaught to 2-6, while the loss dropped the Islanders to 1-6.

The Knights led for most of the game — a game that saw neither team ahead by more than six, although both crews held six-point cushions at various times.

Although Grand Island had four men produce double scoring figures compared to just two Lincolnites, Randy Adams was the games top scorer, hitting 17 points for SE. Senior Mark Roux added 10 for the winners.

Junior guard Randy Evans hit 15 for GI, followed by senior center Bob Gruntorad with 11 and 10-point efforts by Gary Griffin and Tom Hansen.

Neither team was impressive from the free throw line with Grand Island hitting 20 of 35 and the Capitol City crew sinking only 14 of 30. But the Knights hit on 20 field goals compared to the Islanders with 16 to produce the victory.

Each team had one player foul out, but Southeast was called for 22 personal fouls and the hosts had 18. Grand Island lost Griffin and the visitors were missing Harvey due to personal fouls.

Beatrice — Lincoln East's Spartans jumped out to an early 11-2 advantage and continued their scoring ways as they dumped the Beatrice Orangemen, 87-55, here Friday night.

It was the sixth win of the season for coach Paul Forch's Spartans against two defeats. Beatrice now stands 1-7.

The game was never in question after the early East lead which saw the Spartans holding a 38-20 advantage at the intermission. East then raced to a 65-38 lead at the third-quarter break highlighted by eight-point outbursts by Kent Reckewey and Dave Fischbach.

Waverly Holds Pius X Cagers To 64-62 Verdict

. . . VIKINGS SURVIVE 'BOLT SURGE

Waverly — Once-beaten Waverly survived a belated comeback by Lincoln Pius X here Friday night to register a 64-62 verdict, the Vikings' sixth victory in seven decisions.

Waverly, ahead by as much as 17 points early in the third quarter and by 16 late in the same period, almost saw the game go into overtime when Pius sophomore Bob McEniry fired from half court after an out-of-bounds play with one second remaining.

McEniry's effort was accurate enough, but just missed the rim and hit the net underneath.

Pius' comeback started in the last 40 seconds of the third quarter when the Thunderbolts, now 1-7, trailed 58-42. But Bill Jarrett and Larry Jablonski each dumped a field goal to close the quarter at 58-46.

The Vikings, who shot a torrid 64 per cent in scoring 43 first half points, could collect only 21 points after intermission, only six of which came in the near-disastrous fourth stanza.

Senoir guard Ray Coniglio was most responsible for the Pius turnabout. After getting only two points in the first quarter, he started connecting in the next three periods and finished with 22 points, including an eight point fourth quarter effort.

Waverly seemingly held an insurmountable 64-54 bulge with 3:10 remaining in the contest before Coniglio spearheaded the late 'Bolt surge which accounted for the last eight points.

Coniglio bulls-eyed buckets with 1:17 and :07 seconds remaining, and the Thunderbolts immediately fouled Geoff Schneider, then signalled for a time out.

Schneider missed both ends of a 2-shot foul, and Pius was still alive despite only one second showing on the clock.

Schneider, however, paced Waverly's first half explosion, pocketing 17 points on an assortment of close-in maneuvers. He could manage only three counters in the second half and finished with 20.

Teammate Glen Schultz led the Vikings with 21 points. Bill Johnson added 12.

Junior Jim Wilkinson, who started the Thunderbolts' fourth period pursuit with a fielder and a pair of free throws, collected 13 points.

. . PAWNEE CITY WINS IN LAST SECOND

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Write

Tecumseh — Two hair-raising finishes completed the Southeast Border Conference Basketball Tournament here Friday night. Pawnee City claimed the league title by edging Sterling, 60-59, while Tecumseh squeezed out a 57-55 victory over Humboldt to capture the consolation crown.

Pawnee City, number three rated in Class C, grabbed it's tenth straight triumph by downing the defending state champion Class D Jets.

Sterling, ranked again in the top ten this season, opened with a roar by jumping to a 20-6 advantage, but the victorious Indians staged a second-quarter comeback with the aid of a fullcourt press to pull within one point at half time.

Though the early stages of the third period continued in seasaw fashion, Roger Thiemann and Brian Ganzel hit a pair of buckets to give Pawnee a 45-40 lead it never lost.

Galen Boldt, who paced Sterling with 24 points, hit a pair of long fielders near the end to get the Jets within three at 60-57. But when Sterling gained possession for the last time, with one second left, the Indians huddled at center court to allow an unmolested basket which produced the final talley.

It turned out to be a night for Indians. Tecumseh, which has the same nickname as Pawnee City, also needed a second half comeback to gain its win over Humboldt.

Tecumseh's key to success was a switch to a man to man defense which pulled the winners from a 28-21 halftime deficit to a 41-38 advantage at the end of the third quarter.

Despite the efforts of Humboldt's Gene Hayes, who came on the scene in the late stages to come up with four defensive steels, Tecumseh survived in the final seconds on two crucial free throws by Bill Campbell which provided the margin of victory.

—WINLESS SINCE '65—

Harney Leads Halfway Through Phoenix Meet

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Harney, a grey-haired veteran who hasn't won since 1965, fired a two-under-par 69 Friday and moved into the second round lead in the $100,000 Phoenix Open Golf tournament.

Harney, a 40-year-old who also led at the halfway mark at last week's Los Angeles Open, had a 36-hole total of 134 and a one-shot lead.

Larry Ziegler fashioned a blistering 65 — six-under-par on the 6,765-yard Phoenix Country Club course — and was tied at 135 with Howie Johnson and defending champion Gene Littler. Littler and Johnson each had a 68.

Bert Greene, the first round leader at 64, slipped to a 72 for 136 and was tied at the figure with five others.

They are Lee Trevino, with a second-round 66; Terry Dill, 68; Rod Funseth and Phil Rodgers, each 67; and Homero Blancas, 69.

Larry Hinson and Dale Douglass, each with a 66, were tied at 137.

Harney, a club pro from Sutton, Mass., who now plays only about 10 tournaments a year, scored his last tour victory in the Los Angeles Open almost six years ago.

He had only three birdies and a single bogey, all on the front side, as he moved past the faltering Greene.

NU Teams At Home Saturday

Nebraska sports fans will have a wide variety of sports to choose from today when five Husker teams will complete at home.

The action will begin at 12:30 p.m. when the Husker wrestlers open a triangular against Minnesota. At 1:45 p.m., Minnesota will be pitted against Missouri, and the Huskers will meet Missouri at 3 p.m. in the final round of the meet.

This will be the first triangular for coach Orval Borgialli's grapplers whose dual record is 0 and 2. The two losses have been at the hands of Iowa State and Drake. Iowa State is currently ranked No. 1 in the nation.

Swimming fans may drop by the Coliseum pool at 2:30 p.m. to watch the tankers take on Colorado. The Huskers will be looking for their first victory in dual competition after being edged by Missouri last Saturday in a tightly contested match.

The Husker gymnasts will be going against Colorado in the Men's P.E. Building at 2 p.m.

The gym squad brings a 1-0 dual record into the meet under the direction of new head coach Francis Allen.

Top point getters for the squad are two Lincoln products, Hoppy Batten from Southeast, and Dennis Moen from Lincoln High.

Before the Husker basketball team takes to the court against Colorado to wrap up the day's activities, the Frosh roundballers will meet North Platte at 5:15 p.m.

The freshmen have compiled a 4-1 record, with the only loss against Nebraska Western in the season opener.

There is no admission fee for the wrestling, swimming and gymnastics events.

G. Milby Resigns Position At JFK

Wahoo (AP) — George Milby announced Friday he will resign as basketball coach at John F. Kennedy College at the end of the current season.

Milby, who coached on the high school level in Pennsylvania, Ohio and California before coming to Wahoo, is in his third season as JFK mentor.

He said he is resigning "Because I was uncertain of my basketball future and for other personal reasons. I have enjoyed teaching here at JFK and also my associations with the athletes, students, administration, faculty and staff."

He said he will return to the West Coast for an interview about a college position and plans to attend the NCAA championships at the University of Maryland in March.

Milby's record at JFK has been 23 wins and 39 losses.

Southern Strategy Theories Rejected

. . . GOP SAID STRONG

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Rejecting theories that the GOP is hotly pursuing a "southern strategy," the assistant Republican national chairman Friday said her party may be showing its greatest strength in 15 years.

President Nixon's popularity is "very high" and Republicans have "a great opportunity" to gain control of the Senate in this year's elections, Mrs. Elly Peterson said.

The GOP can claim 32 governors, it is financially stable and it "stands united," she declared.

'Great Strengths'

"These are great strengths, perhaps the greatest in the 15 years that I have been the most active in the party," Mrs. Peterson told a Lincoln news conference.

As for a southern strategy aimed at adding the South to traditional Republican strongholds in the Midwest and the West — to the exclusion of the East — Mrs. Peterson pointed to recent GOP gubernatorial successes in New Jersey and Virginia.

"Our strategy is based individually on each state," she said. "The southern strategy is in the southern states."

Coalition Noted

In the GOP Virginia gubernatorial victory, she noted, Republicans successfully formed a coalition which included both labor and blacks, two groups which supposedly would be ignored in any southern strategy.

Mrs. Peterson was in the Capital City to initiate an "Action Now Program" in Nebraska and attend Republican workshops here Saturday.

The party's "Action Now Program" is designed to promote volunteer community action in attacking environmental problems and drug abuse.

"There never has been a time when citizens are so aware of environmental problems," Mrs. Peterson pointed out.

Gov. Norbert Tiemann, an observer at the press conference, said his administratiin is giving "a very high priority" to pollution problems.

To Ask For Aid

Tiemann said he expects to ask the 1971 Legislature for "at least $3 million in state aid" to help construct municipal waste treatment plants.

A new program of state assistance would boost federal funding from the 30% level to about 50%, and reduce the burden on municipalities from 70% to about 25%.

Mrs. Peterson said Republicans are attempting to involve youth in party activities, "but the young are looking for some answers that we, as political parties, haven't found yet."

The GOP will keep trying, she said, "by listening to them and involving them."

National Banks Provided With Tax Guidelines

National banks, which became subject to Nebraska's sales and use tax last Dec. 24, have been furnished guidelines for computation of their tax liability, Asst. State Tax Commissioner Elmer Hermes reported Friday.

Under new federal legislation, the national banks became subject to general sales tax as imposed on state-chartered banks.

Hermes said the Nebraska Banking Association is assisting in notifying the national banks.

Tax-exempt certificates, which may have previously been provided by the national banks to their vendors, will now be withdrawn, he said.

Lincoln High seniors Tamara (Tami) Hathaway and Frederick J. Newcomer have been named winners of the annual Elks' Lincoln Schools Leadership Contest.

Tamara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Hathaway of 1124 New Hampshire. Fred is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Newcomer of 3900 Mohawk.

Both students will receive awards of $100 from Lincoln Lodge 80, B.P.O.E., sponsor of the competition, and will be entered in the statewide contest.

Records Compiled

Each student entering the competition at the local level prepares a detailed record of his activities which require leadership characteristics. This brochure includes newspaper reports of their activities, letters from local, state and national leaders attesting to the leadership activities of the student, and any other evidence of leadership.

Judging is based on leadership, citizenship appreciation, perseverance, resourcefulness, sense of honor, neatness and arrangement of brochure and compliance with contest instructions.

The brochures, which must weigh no more than 20 ounces, are evaluated by three judges. The two winning brochures are entered in the state contest, where they will compete with boy and girl winners from all other lodges in Nebraska. Winners in the state competition will receive $175 cash awards plus a $350 U.S. Savings Bond.

Prizes $2,000

State winners will be entered in the national contest, where the winners will receive as much as $2,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Among girl competitors, Cynthia Jane Kissler of Lincoln High and Cynthia G. Orr of Lincoln Northeast each received awards of $17.50 in a two-way tie for first runnerup.

Edmund O. Belsheim of Lincoln Southeast and Steven C. Westover of Lincoln Northeast tied for first runnerup in the boys' competition.

Festival Has Problems

Mosport, Ont. (AP) — Beatle John Lennon's announced plans to stage a three-day rock peace festival here in July has run into legal obstacles. Clarke township official Horace Best said a bylaw restricts the area to agriculture, auto race track and accessory uses, and surmised a rock festival could hardly be an accessory to auto racing or farming.

Lincoln Foundation Defers 2 Requests

Lincoln Foundation board members Friday deferred action on two requests for grants totaling $16,425 from Goodwill Industries and the Lincoln Public Schools music department.

Goodwill Industries had asked for $15,485 to furnish a food service training program for mentally retarded, recovered mentally ill and physically handicapped adults.

The school district, represented by Gene Stoll, coordinator of instrumental music, had sought $940 in matching funds to conduct a chamber music festival in the city next April.

Report Asked

Foundation board members, noting that grants are not made for capital expenditures, asked for a report on the participation of the State Division of Rehabilitation Services in the Goodwill training program before considering the grant request further.

Participation by the state division, both in financial support and in referring clients to the training program, was not sufficiently outlined, according to Board President Robert C. Guenzel.

The grant requested by Goodwill would provide kitchen equipment and the first year's salary of a training supervisor, explained Goodwill Director John P. Gedwillo.

Lincoln Community Council Director John Goessman recommended that the foundation consider only the possibility of providing $2,898, which would be necessary to match federal funds available for such a project.

To Ed Board

Members of the board recommended that the school music department take its request for funds to the Lincoln Board of Education before asking the foundation for a grant.

According to Stoll and Dr. Louis Tracinski of the University of Nebraska School of Music, the $940 requested from the Lincoln Foundation would be matched with $940 from the Nebraska Arts Council to pay the cost of inviting the Pro Arte Quartet of the University of Wisconsin to appear at a two-day chamber music festival here.

The two-day intensive training program would be designed to "encourage and assist in developing the chamber music principle as a vital part of the school instrumental program," Stoll reported.

In addition to coaching students in ensemble groups, the Pro Arte Quartert would be used to interest youths in playing string instruments.

He's Giving Away $26 Million!

Scarsdale, N.Y. (AP) — Michael James Brody Jr., a freshly minted 21-year-old millionaire, is out to make people happy by giving away his fortune. He found no shortage of takers Friday.

News spread quickly that the mother lode was in Scarsdale and all it took was a visit, a telegram or a telephone call to tap it. Local and long distance, for everything from new cars to old mortgages, the requests poured in.

Brody and his bride of 11 days, Renee, told a news conference in New York City Thursday night he would give a piece of his inheritance, which he put at $26 million, to any worthy person.

500 Worthies Assembled

At one point Friday morning there were more than 500 would-be worthies assembled in front of his rented $400,000 home here. Inside, another 15 encircled the kitchen table while Brody dashed off check after check.

Finally it got to him. "I want everyone out of this house right now," he shouted. "You've got to leave me three checks. I can't write my last three checks!"

Police in this normally sedate, suburban community helped clear the house and blocked off the road. "I need a system," commented the fledgling philanthropist after the fund seekers left. "Everyone has been crowding me."

Asked if he knew the people he had been writing checks for, Brody said, "I've never seen them before in my life. But if they think they need the money bad enough to come here and ask for it, they must need it."

Of course not everyone could come here so quickly. But Brody took care of that by giving out his home telephone number during the news conference.

He stopped taking calls by midmorning because "the phone is just too tied up."

Telephones Swamped

"We've been swamped with calls for Michael J. Brody since I came in at 7 a.m.," sighed a weary telephone company supervisor. Scarsdale police said their switchboard was tied up with calls from as far away as Texas and California.

Western Union said it had already transmitted 300 telegrams to Brody and still had a backlog of 200 waiting to be sent to the tiny Scarsdale office.

And published reports of a Brody's opening a giveaway office in Manhattan brought hundreds to a 14th floor cubicle in a building on Broadway. They were told to leave their request and telephone number in writing.

$26 Million Estate

Brody's money came last October from his maternal grandfather, John F. Jelke, the oleomargarine magnate who died in 1965. Brody's father said the inheritance amounted to $3 million. Michael Jr. says it is now $26 million and growing.

The money went directly to Jelke's grandchildren. One of the grandfather's sons was Minot F. "Mickey" Jelke III, who was convicted of compulsory prostitution in a widely publicized Manhattan call-girl case in 1955.

Michael Brody made the decision to give his fortune away during his Jamaica honeymoon. He chartered a 140-passenger jet at $7,954 for the trip home and told a news conference he wanted to bring peace and help the poor.

Anybody Can Get It

He reportedly gave $2,500 to a man with mortgage trouble, $1,000 to a taxi driver, $500 to a heroin addict, $100 to a barber who opened a door for him and $100 to a newsboy who sold him a paper — all on Thursday.

"Peace is what I want," he said at the second news conference. "When everyone is as rich as I am, I'll go to a desert island and leave the world alone and make love to my wife."

At the rate the requests were coming in Friday, he could be there in a few days.

Thieu Shuffles Delta Commanders

Saigon (AP) — South Vietnamese military headquarters announced Saturday the replacement of two top commanders in the critical Mekong Delta and the reshuffling of a dozen province chiefs.

The moves came three days after President Nguyen Van Thieu said he planned to reorganize the South Vietnamese armed forces.

Headquarters gave no reason for the changes, but they apparently were aimed at bolstering the leadership of the South Vietnamese armed forces. Thieu has admitted leadership is a problem.

In the major change, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Thanh Hoang, commander of the 7th Division in the northern Mekong Delta, was replaced by Col. Nguyen Khoa Nam, a brigade commander in the crack South Vietnamese Airborne Division.

The 7th Division has covered the entire northern Mekong Delta since the withdrawal of two brigades of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division last summer. U.S. authorities rank the 7th as only reasonably acceptable.

Col. Vo Huu Hanh, province chief of Hau Nghia province just west of Saigon, was named to replace Brig. Gen. Pham Van Phu as commander of the 44th Special Tactical Zone which covers the provinces of Kien Phong, Kien Tuong and Chau Doc in the western Mekong Delta bordering Cambodia.

This area has become one of the most critical in the country because of a major North Vietnamese buildup in the region.

Second Heart Transplanted To Man, 44

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP) — Gerald Rector, 44, received a new heart in his second heart transplant in 10 months Friday in an operation lasting almost eight hours.

Doctors at the University of Michigan Medical Center said there were no complications and the new heart was beating well. A spokesman said he would have died within 24 hours if he had not had the new transplant.

Rector, who lives on a farm near Kalamazoo, Mich., was reported breathing without artificial assistance.

The donor was Mrs. Hildreth Judy, 55, of Saline, who died of a stroke. William N. Hubbard Jr., director of the Medical Center, said both of Mrs. Judy's kidneys were donated for transplants to other patients.

Rector received his first heart transplant from Roland J. Hoag, 24, of Westland, last March 17.

Manson Request For Public Funds Nixed By Judge

Los Angeles (UPI) — Charles M. Manson, charged with the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons, was denied $750 in public funds Friday to hire a private investigator.

Superior Court Judge George M. Dell, in denying the request from Manson who is acting as his own attorney, noted the defendant said in court earlier he "was not indigent and did have funds to retain counsel" if he wished.

In vacating a previous order authorizing the expenditure, Dell also rejected Manson's request that he be provided a tape recorder to help prepare his case.

Manson, 35, is scheduled to enter a plea Jan. 28.

AFL-CIO Gives Curtis, Hruska Ratings Of Zero

Washington (UPI) — The AFL-CIO took a look Friday at the 1969 voting records on congressmen on issues important to labor. All 24 senators and all but three of the 95 representatives given a 100% rating were Democrats.

The labor federation gave a zero rating to 17 House members and 14 senators, with most of the poor scores going to Republicans and southern Democrats.

Among the 14 senators given zero ratings were Nebraska Republicans Carl T. Curtis and Roman L. Hruska.

The ratings were computed on the basis of whether or not a lawmaker voted the way the AFL-CIO wanted on 11 selected issues.

Pennies Deluge Legal Stickler In 1-Cent Theft

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — Asst. Police Chief Richard Newton has received pennies in the mail recently. Some have come from Vietnam and Canada.

The coins are in response to Newton's announcement that police would investigate fully the theft of a piece of penny Candy from a grocery store.

A 14-year-old boy allegedly had walked into the store plopped the candy in his mouth and walked out. Newton, citing the principle of the affair, said police would handle the investigation as any other theft. His decision gained worldwide notice.

He said most of the recent letters have been antipolice. One, from Canada, said only: "You hypocrite."

Karnopp Seeking 6th Term As Lancaster County Sheriff

MERLE KARNOPP

Seeks Re-Election

Lancaster County Sheriff Merle Karnopp filed Friday for re-election to a sixth term in the post.

In filing, the 59-year-old Republican said, "Never in the history of our nation has the challenge to combat the increasing crime rate been so important as it is today."

"This should be of utmost importance to every citizen; in law enforcement as in other fields, experience and good training are important and the Lancaster County Sheriff's personnel have this training and experience, and will continue to take advantage of all training services available," he said.

Karnopp was appointed a deputy sheriff in 1942 and served in that capacity eight years until he was elected sheriff in 1950.

He is a graduate of the National FBI Academy, past president of the Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association, is a member of the board of directors of the National Sheriff's Association, a member of the Crime Commission, Grace Methodist Church, East Lincoln Lodge 210, Scottish Rite, Shrine, Elks Lodge 80, Sertoma Club, Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Lincoln Sowers, American Forward Association and the Welfare Society.

He is married and the father of one son.

Wallace Barnett To Seek Knight's Legislature Seat

Wallace M. (Wally) Barnett Jr., 38-year-old assistant state fire marshal, announced Friday his candidacy for state senator from the 26th Legislative District.

Barnett, of Lincoln, said he has accepted a position with a private firm and will resign his state position effective March 1.

Barnett was associated with the Lincoln Fire Department for 13½ years before becoming assistant state fire marshal some 2½ years ago.

He said he seeks a Unicameral seat, not "to promote any pet theories or ideas that I have," but because "I want to be the voice for the citizens of my district."

The 26th Legislative District currently is represented by Sen. John E. Knight of Lincoln, who has reported he will not seek renomination this year.

Ferguson Files For Re-Election

Kenneth L. Ferguson, Lancaster County register of deeds, filed Friday for re-election to the post on the Republican ticket.

Ferguson, 45, who has worked in the office for about 20 years, was first elected to the post in 1958, having served as chief deputy for seven years prior to that time.

SGT. RONALD JENNIGES

Last Letter, Like His Life, Was Brief

Wanda, Minn. (AP) — A letter Sgt. Ronald Jenniges wrote to his family was brief, as was his life. He asked that it be opened only in the event he died in Vietnam.

The sergeant, 20, died Jan. 3 of wounds suffered Dec. 28.

In Wanda, the Gilbert Jenniges opened the letter which Ronald had mailed to his brother Richard.

"Dearest and loved mom, dad and brothers and sisters," the letter started. "I died fighting for my country. I died because it was God's will, and God's will is the best judgment known to man. He must have had a good reason for taking my life.

"I lived a very short life down on earth but my next life will be a long one and I will see all of you again in your second life. God knows best and I will see all of you again.

"Love, all of you, your son and brother, Ronnie."

Hruska Will Give Lincoln Day Talk

Kearney (UPI) — Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., will be speaker at a Lincoln Day dinner here Feb. 11, it was announced Friday.

The dinner will be a fund raising affair for the Buffalo County GOP.

Party officials expressed hope Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., would also be able to attend.

Omahan Heads Demo Subcommittee To Study Party's Proxy Procedure

Omaha attorney Richard Fellman was named Friday as chairman of a special subcommittee appointed to consider possible changes in or elimination of the proxy procedure employed in meetings of the Democratic state central committee.

The subcommittee will function as a unit of the committee on party reform, State Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln announced.

Other members of the subcommittee are David Downing of Superior, Lavon Schwarting of Gordon, Norman Krivosha of Lincoln and Everett Reimers of Nebraska City.

The subcommittee has tentatively scheduled its first meeting for Feb. 8 in Kearney. It will also participate in a Feb. 20 public hearing in Omaha previously scheduled by the committee on party reform.

The subcommittee has been assigned to present its recommendations to the next meeting of the state central committee in Omaha March 8.

Reconsideration of the proxy procedure was prompted by a report to the state executive committee by Hal Blostein of Kearney, which suggested there were "irregularities" in the use of proxies at the last central committee session.

Dyas believes the proxy system should be eliminated.

Exon Blasts Tiemann For Backing Policies

Democratic gubernatorial candidate J. J. Exon of Lincoln said Friday it was time that Gov. Norbert Tiemann consider what might be happening to Nebraska while he continues to hold "meaningless news conferences supporting administration policy."

"It is almost inconceivable to imagine allowing Nebraska farmers to be financially broken while the governor attempts to convince Nebraskans they can get along without $25.5 million and suffer other financial hardships at the hands of the administration without it hurting all Nebraskans," said Exon.

Exon said the financial blows delivered to Nebraska include the delay of $25.5 million in advance feed grain payments, elimination of meaningful Farmers Home Administration funds, discouragement of on-the-farm storage, reducing soybean support prices and calling for 1964-66 stored corn in face of a glut on the market.

"These factors have all hurt Nebraska and should warrant the governor's attention and nonpolitical leadership instead of fiddling with words while Nebraska economy burns," said Exon.

Exon said it was time that Tiemann employed the services of Agriculture Director Elmer Schlaphoff in attempting to find solutions for the burdensome problems facing Nebraska farmers.

Pupils Cleared, Roof Collapses, School Canceled

Lebanon, N.H. (AP) — Warned by a sound "like a shotgun going off," school officials cleared about 350 pupils out of a flat-roofed gymnasium Friday. About 1½ hours later the roof collapsed, apparently from the weight of two feet of accumulated snow.

No injuries were reported. School Supt. William Merrill said classes would be canceled until adjoining school buildings were declared safe.

Nonpublic School Aid To Be Topic

A public hearing on aid to nonpublic schools, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 29 in the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph building auditorium.

Speakers will be Mrs. John Angle, president of the Lincoln School Board, and Dr. Robert Sittig, president of the Lincoln Catholic Board of Education.

Miller To Confab

V. T. Miller, science coordinator for the Nebraska Council for Educational Television, will present a paper entitled "The Science Shed" at the annual convention of the National Science Teachers Association, scheduled March 13-17 in Cincinnati.

IBM Starts Drop In Stock Market

New York (AP) — The stock market fell lower Friday after a sudden and late drop in glamor stocks reversed a move to higher ground.

"The IBM drop started the whole market down," said one analyst.

IBM had been trading at record highs in recent sessions, but an afternoon report of lower fourth-quarter earnings — year end earnings were up—sparked a selling surge and it plunged downward to close at 369¾, off 11¾.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials — a measure of blue chip stock performance — dropped 2.44 or .30% to close a losing week at 792.60. It had been up nearly 2 points in the morning.

Declining issues on the New York exchange outnumbered advances 839 to 466 among the 1,572 traded, also a reversal of an earlier trend.

Trading had been moderate much of the day but picked up near the close to end at a fairly active total of 11.95 million shares.

Control Data lost a hefty 9⅞ to 98¾. Analysts readjusted downward their projected earnings for the company said one.

National Cash Register fell 4¾ to 166. Disney 2 to 146, University Computing 7⅞ to 81⅝. Polaroid 4⅝ to 118¾, and Telex 4⅜ to 116⅛.

The AP 60-stock average lost .8 to 270.0, with industrials off .6, rails off .5 and utilities off .8.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks dipped 0.40 to 50.94 and Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slipped .76 to 90.92.

Most-active on the Big Board was First Charter Financial; boosted into the slot by a 114,600 share block and other smaller blocks. It closed off 1 at 29¼.

Trading in blocks of 10,000 shares or more numbered 85 Friday compared with 90 in the previous session.

Of the 20 most-active Big Board stocks, 16 declined, 2 advanced and 2 were unchanged. There were 68 new 1969-70 lows and 27 new highs.

Prices declined along a broad front on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex price index dropped 15 cents to $26.55 in a turnover of 5.2 million shares.

There were 566 declines and only 290 advances.

Bethlehem Ups Prices; Not All Steel Affected

© The New York Times

New York — The Bethlehem Steel Corp. said Friday it would raise prices about 5% on important categories of steel used in the construction of buildings, ships, bridges and heavy machinery facilities.

The principal items to be affected by the increases March 1 will be structural shapes — such as beams, girders and columns — as well as carbon-steel plates.

This latest advance, if other companies follow suit, would affect about 16% of the total American steel market. Paradoxically, this and other price increases are being made at a time when gross national product and other key indicators point to a slowdown in the economy.

Second In Size

Bethlehem is second in size among American producers, after U.S. Steel Corp. The only comment from U.S. Steel, the third-ranking Republic Steel Corp. and other producers was that they were "studying Bethlehem's action."

However, steel companies generally have made it clear that they expect to raise prices again this year to meet rising costs of many kinds, following an average increase of more than 7% in steel prices last year.

The President's Council of Economic Advisers, which has refrained from comment on spot price changes during the Nixon administration, gave no immediate reaction to the Bethlehem move.

Taken Reluctantly

E. D. Bickford, the steel concern's vice president for sales, said he wanted to "emphasize the corporation's reluctance in taking this action." He declared: "There was no other way to partially offset the adverse effect on Bethlehem's financial position brought about by rapidly rising costs of goods and services."

Effective with shipments of March 1, the company's base prices for structural shapes and steel plates will be increased by $7 a ton. A third category, sheet piling, will be raised $10 a ton, or about six per cent, effective with shipments Feb. 15.

In terms of tonnages, the structural shapes represent about 6.1% of steel-industry shipments in the U.S. Plates account for another 9.1%. The third item, sheet piling, represents less than 1% of the market.

Meet the young man who is

MASTER OF TWO WORLDS

Man has walked on the moon. He is master, for the first time, of two worlds.

This fascinates and challenges the young mind. But it is not new to the experienced and successful newspaperboy. He, too, has mastered two worlds.

At the same time he has been going to the classroom to obtain a formal education, he has been gaining practical experience through his own business activities. Each complements the other, giving him a dual education that school, alone, could never provide.

Educators, judges, businessmen, and youth leaders everywhere recognize the value of this superior educational experience. It's "out of this world" you could say!

Drafting Of Plans For State Probation System Authorized

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice Friday authorized a committee to draft legislative proposals for a uniform, statewide probation system.

Commission members appointed to the committee were Dist. Judge Elmer M. Scheele of Lincoln, chairman; Maurice Sigler, state penal director, and Harvey Perlman, University of Nebraska law professor.

A commission study, compiled last June by Perlman, will form the basis for the preliminary legislative draft, which will be reviewed by the state associations of district judges and probation officers.

Bill To Discuss

"We need to draft a bill for discussion purposes," commission chairman Clarence A. H. Meyer said, "so the idea of a statewide probation system just won't wither on the vine."

Perlman said a statewide system would integrate and improve the present district system, which has operated since 1948.

A probation system for misdemeants could be provided on a voluntary, cooperative basis with county and municipal courts in the statewide system, he added.

'Jealously Proud'

Noting that district judges are "jealously proud of the present system," Scheele suggested the "final product (legislation) will not resemble the report as of today."

The commission was advised that a study on a statewide public defender system is progressing and should be completed in the next several months.

The report, being compiled by James Lake, NU law professor, is ascertaining the costs and other problems of the present court-appointed attorney system for defendants.

'Money Ahead'

Meyer said he hoped the "report will show that the counties and taxpayers will be money ahead if the state would switch to a public defender system."

The state commission, successor to the Governor's Crime Commission, routinely ratified existing obligations and contracts of the old commission.

At the organizational meeting, Scheele was designated vice chairman by Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

New Airport Classification Plan Outlined To Aeronautics Council

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

A proposal for establishing a new classification for airports in the state was outlined before the Nebraska Aeronautics Commission at its monthly meeting Friday.

Walter Kreuscher of the State Aeronautics Department said airports would be classified on the adequacy of their facilities.

Airports, now rated only as municipal or commercial, could be further classified as either "unrestricted," "conditional" or "limited," he suggested.

Commission members did not take any action on the proposal after being told that the new classification system is still in the planning stage.

Department officials said the system is the outcome of a study of existing department rules and regulations.

"We have found a number of conflicts and inadequacies in the rules and regulations," State Aeronautics Director Paul Burket explained.

Those municipal and commercial airports which presently meet the specifications of the small airport plan formulated by the department would be listed in the "unrestricted" category and referred to as municipal or commercial airports.

'Meet Requirements'

"These airports meet the minimum requirements for federal aid," Kreuscher said.

He said those airports which would be classified as conditional and limited do not meet federal aid requirements, primarily because of the length of the runway.

An airport classified as municipal-conditional or commercial-conditional must have a runway length of 1,400 feet plus 25% of the elevation.

Aid Restricted

According to Burket, an airport can receive government aid only to make improvements which would place the airport in an unrestricted classification.

A limited airport was described by Kreuscher as "the absolute minimum type of airport" which the department could license.

He said that there must be 1,200 feet of usable landing surface plus 25% of the elevation.

The meeting was the first to be presided over by the 1970 chairman, William Fraser Jr. of Omaha. Fraser succeeds Jess Quinn of Gothenburg as chairman.

Change Adopted

Commissioners adopted a procedural change under which the commission will grant allocations for airport improvements.

Commissioners will hear on July 8 delegations from communities and airport authorities present requests for funds. They will decide on July 17 on the grant allocations.

In the past, the commission had made its decisions on the allocations the same day it heard testimony.

MIT Rejects Demands

Cambridge, Mass. (AP) — Officials at Massachusetts Institute of Technology rejected Friday the demands of more than 100 demonstrators occupying the offices of the university president.

Dr. Paul Gray, the university's associate provost, told newsmen the administration would "not negotiate at the point of a gun."

Gray said administration officials were meeting continuously on the takeover and had discussed calling in civil authorities to remove the demonstrators. He said this seemed to be the only alternative in dealing with the participating nonstudents, which he estimated at 50%.

Dr. J. D. Nyhart, dean of student affairs, told the protesters they could face criminal charges.

"You're considered trespassers," Nyhart told them. "subject to prosecution under the laws of Massachusetts without further notice."

The demonstrators smashed their way into the office of President Howard W. Johnson Thursday, using a homemade battering ram. Johnson was not in the office.

The takeover was sponsored by Students for a Democratic Society.

Politics Decried

Washington (UPI) — The Ripon Society, a liberal Republican organization, charged that Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was letting politics shape federal law enforcement and said he ought to stop it or resign.

Marsh Estimates 5,000 Have Not Refiled Brands

Secretary of State Frank Marsh estimated Friday that 5,000 owners of cattle brands, whose last names begins with L to Z, have not renewed their brands.

These brands expired Dec. 31 unless renewed, he said. The reregistration fee is $3 for a four-year period.

Marsh said second notice will be sent to brand owners who have not renewed, but estimated $250 worth of forms can be saved by immediate response from owners who wish to renew their brands.

IBM Starts Drop In Stock Market

New York (AP) — The stock market fell lower Friday after a sudden and late drop in glamor stocks reversed a move to higher ground.

"The IBM drop started the whole market down," said one analyst.

IBM had been trading at record highs in recent sessions, but an afternoon report of lower fourth-quarter earnings — year end earnings were up-sparked a selling surge and it plunged downward to close at 369¾, off 11¾.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials — a measure of blue chip stock performance — dropped 2.37 or .30% to close a losing week at 782.67. It had been up nearly 2 points in the morning.

Declining issues on the New York exchange outnumbered advances 839 to 466 among the 1,572 traded, also a reversal of an earlier trend.

Trading had been moderate much of the day but picked up near the close to end at a fiarly active total of 11.95 million shares.

Control Data lost a hefty 9% to 98¾. Analysts readjusted downward their projected earnings for the company said one.

National Cash Regiter fell 4¾ to 166. Disney 2 to 146, University Computing 7⅞ to 81⅝. Polaroid 4⅝ to 118¾, and Telex 4⅜ to 116⅛.

The AP 60-stock average lost .8 to 270.0, with industrials off .6, rails off .5 and utilities off .8.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks dipped 0.40 to 50.94 and Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slipped .76 to 90.92.

Most-active on the Big Board was First Charter Financial; boosted into the slot by a 114,600 share block and other smaller blocks. It closed off 1 at 29¼.

Trading in blocks of 10,000 shares or more numbered 85 Friday compared with 90 in the previous session.

Of the 20 most-active Big Board stocks, 16 declined, 2 advanced and 2 were unchanged. There were 68 new 1969-70 lows and 27 enw highs.

Prices declined along a broad front on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex price index dropped 15 cents to $26.55 in a turnover of 5.2 million shares.

There were 566 declines and only 290 advances.

Farm, Ranch Total Drops

. . . Steady Decline Since 1934

By the Associated Press

The number of farms and ranches in Nebraska during 1969 was 3% below the number in 1968, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Friday.

The 1969 total was 74,000 with 48.2 million acres of land in operation. The total compares with 76,000 farms in 1968 containing the same 48.2 million acres.

The preliminary estimate for 1970 was set at 73,000 farms and rnches with a total acreage expected of about 48.1 million acres, the report said.

The number of farms and ranches in the state has shown a steady decline since 1934, when the number was 135,000, the statisticians said.

By 1957 the number dropped below 100,000 and the figure has dropped 22% since 1960.

The decrease reflects continued consolidation of tracts with the average size of farms and ranches showing corresponding increases, the report said, indicating the average size for 1970 was 659 acres, compared with 518 acres in 1960.

In other reports Friday, the crop experts said the Nebraska range was open during December and cattle made extensive use of winter pastures and gleaning corn and milo fields. Protein supplements were being fed in most areas where the cattle were still grazing.

Because of the open range, the report said, cattle have been able to graze, reducing the possibility of an inadequate hay supply that could have developed where dry weather this summer produced a short hay crop.

Temperatures were favorable for young animals, although additional care was required during cold and snowy periods, the report said. Calves have been weaned with light losses. Some cases of shipping fever have been reported.

Seeding Of Adapted Grass Urged For Controling Weeds

The Nebraska Forage and Grassland Council (NFGC) passed a resolution to promote control of annual weeds in fence rows, drainage ways, disturbed areas and waste land by seeding with adapted grasses.

The council held its semi-annual meeting at Keim Hall on the University of Nebraska East Campus.

The resolution reads that seeding to grass would have the effect ". . . that pollutions of annual weeds and other undesirable vegetation be thereby reduced, stream sediment loads decreased and the beauty of the countryside considerably enhanced."

Attention was called to the fact that one of the weeds that could be reduced was wild hemp, or marijuana, and that such seeding would come under ASC cost sharing.

The resolution also pointed out that it is economically and physically unfeasible to eradicate certain annual weeds by use of herbicides.

In another action, members voted for the NFGC to formally join the American Forage and Grassland Council.

Weston W. Furrer, a farm management specialist, became the new chairman and Robert Jacobsen of the State Department of Roads was elected chairman-elect.

Hooper-Uehling Voters Approve $385,000 Issue

Hooper (AP) — Voters in School District 94, Hooper-Uehling, have approved by a 71% majority a $385,000 bond issue to equip the new Logan View Junior-Senior High School being built northwest of Winslow.

The vote was 289 for the bond issue and 119 opposed.

The school, scheduled to be opened next fall, was built with proceeds from the sale of $1.5 million in bonds approved by voters in September of 1968.

The three employes, John Martinez, Jacquie Kudlacz and Jerry Stones, have spent weeks making friends with Brigitte, feeding her and establishing that they are the bosses.

Aetna Firm Found Liable For Cavein

Nebraska City (UPI) — The Aetna Insurance Co. has been found to be liable for approximately $50,000 in compensation payments and other expenses in a bridge cavein near Otoe, Neb., on April 24, 1968.

Killed in the cave-in were Miner A. Bassinger, Frank Williams and Alvin J. Neeman. Injured was Maurice V. Karspeck.

The widows and Karspeck sought the damages in Otoe County District Court.

Judge Walter H. Smith ruled Aetna was liable for compensation payments and other expenses as determined by a workmen's compensation court since the Aetna policy was in force at the time of the mishap.

The judge said the co-defendant in the case, Hawkeye-Security Co., proved its policy had been cancelled prior to the accident.

The compensation court has ruled the survivors of the three men who were killed were entitled to $45 per week for 325 weeks plus $75 towards burial expenses. The court ruled Karspeck would receive $45 per week for approximately 19 weeks and $2.50 per week for approximately 281 weeks, plus medical and hospital expenses.

'69 Traffic Death Toll Down To 422

Nebraska's 1969 traffic fatality count was reduced by one Friday — to 422.

State Accident Records Bureau director Tom Ryan said he was removing from the 1969 list the name of William E. Johnson, 85, of Beatrice.

Ryan said Johnson was thought to have been struck by a car while walking at Court and Fifth Sts. in Beatrice Dec. 26, but it has since been ascertained that Johnson was not struck by the car. Death resulted from injuries received in a fall on the slippery street, Ryan said.

Meanwhile, Ryan said the death of Floyd M. Crosley, 68, of Fremont Thursday in a train-car collision will not be counted as traffic fatality.

Ryan said the accident happened on the railroad right of way about two-tenths of a mile from the crossing. Fremont police said Crosley was standing beside the car at the time of the crash and was thrown about 50 feet down the tracks by the impact.

Assualt Charges Filed In Wounding Of Picket

Dakota City (AP) — Charges of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm were filed in Dakota County Court Friday against Howard Brentinger Sr., Allen, Neb., in connection with the wounding of a picket at the struck Iowa Beef Packers Plant at Dakota City last Nov. 21.

Raymond Gonzales, 24, Sioux City, Iowa, who suffered two bullet wounds in the affray which occurred as Brentlinger and his wife were leaving the plant, signed the complaint.

Gonzales has already filed a $500,000 damage suit against Iowa Beef and Brentlinger.

Dakota County Attorney Cecil Orton said that "after full investigation by the Nebraska Highway Patrol, the Dakota County attorney's office has determined that a complaint of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm should be filed against Brentlinger." County officials asked the patrol investigation.

'Self Protection'

Dakota County officials originally said that the shooting fell under Nebraska's new self protection law giving a person the right to use any means necessary to protect his person or property.

Union officials lodged a protest.

International Vice President Dave Hart of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, called on Gov. Norbert Tiemann to take steps to see "that the sheriff and county attorney enforce the law impartially or they be removed from office."

Gonzales alleged that Mrs. Brentlinger used vile language on the pickets; that he opened the door on the passenger side and kicked a picket. He said in his petition in the damage suit that when the kick was returned, Brentlinger got out of his car, retreated to the rear of the car and fired five pistol shots at pickets.

Iowa High Court Temporarily Halts Trials Of Sioux Citians

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa Supreme Court has temporarily blocked the trials of two Sioux City, Iowa, men in connection with charges allegedly growing out of incidents connected with the strike against Iowa Beef Packers, Inc., at Dakota City, Neb.

Iowa Supreme Court Chief Justice C. Edwin Moore has issued a stay in proceedings in the case of Harold Johnson, 36, and Roger Harnack, 21.

The two have asked the high court to rule on their denial of a change of venue from Woodbury to Polk County. Justice Moore set a hearing here Jan. 21 on the writ of certiorari.

Fatal Shooting

Johnson is charged with murder and assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Nancy Nielson, 16, and the wounding of her sister Michaelen, 19.

Harnack is charged with setting fire to the garage of an Iowa Beef employe the same night as the shooting. He was arrested with Johnson at the Nielson apartment where the shooting occurred.

Both men, who pleaded innocent to the charges, had asked the Woodbury County district Court to move the trial from Sioux City to Des Moines. They contended that widespread coverage of the sporadically violent Iowa Beef strike has made it impossible for them to receive a fair trial in western Iowa.

However, athe request was denied· A Sioux City judge ordered Jan. 13 that the trial be moved to Council Bluffs in Pottawattamie County. The trial was set for Jan. 27.

Harnack and Johnson cu rently are out on bond pending the Supreme Court hearing on their appeal.

Catholic Schools Closing In Spring

Randolph (UPI) — Parishioners at Randoph St. Frances Catholic Church have voted to discontinue operation of the church grade and high school at the end of the present school year.

A total of 321 persons voted for the closing and 92 against it.

Cited for reasons were the decreasing ability to obtain a sufficient number of nuns as teachers and increasing salaries.

The grade school went into operation in 1899 and the high school in 1914. Construction of a new grade and high school building in 1966 put the parish deeply in debt.

The students will attend public schools here.

Current enrollment at the grade and high school of the parish is 378.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A number of interesting things have been happening on the local scene of late. Much of this covers the field of transportation — either by foot or by auto or even snowmobile.

The City Council, for instance, has had some debate in regard to pedestrian and auto preference in the traffic light control system downtown. Complaint has been heard that the traffic signals do not give sufficient time to pedestrians.

Now, if you think about this, you know it is nonsense. The only thing wrong with the signal system is that pedestrians want everything their own way. The "walk" and "don't walk" signs are a real irritation because they are a discipline and most people don't like discipline. It is as simple as that.

They like the older system where you are not supposed to start walking on the flashing green light. They like it because there seems to be more solid green time in which to walk and because they can ignore the flashing green sign and walk right in the face of it.

Two things stop them with the "walk" and "don't walk" signs. One, such signs are more emphatic and two, they are enforced. Many times, a police officer will be found on the intersection where such controls are in use. You will get called on the carpet for walking against the "don't walk" sign but nobody bothers you if you walk against a flashing green light.

Also, a lot of people still don't understand the newer system. People complain that the light changes from "walk" to "don't walk" before they can get across the intersection. The thing is that there is nothing wrong with this — that's the way it's supposed to work.

If you have a foot in the crosswalk while the light says "walk," you should proceed on across the intersection, despite the fact that the light changes to "don't walk" just as you start across.

You are not supposed to start on "walk" and then turn around and go back when the thing changes to "don't walk." If you did that, many slow walkers would never get across the street. But the total "walk" time is plenty long to allow everyone waiting at the intersection to get going and make his crossing.

Have you ever seen pedestrians backed up and waiting in line to get up to the light and through the intersection. Of course not. On the other hand, cars are frequently jammed up and drivers forced to wait through two "go" lights in order to get through an intersection.

We would venture to say that never in the history of the city has a pedestrian had to wait through two "walk" lights to make one crossing. The situation is plainly a matter of pedestrian impatience, a fact that is evident daily on the streets.

By and large, Lincoln pedestrians are an inconsiderate lot, cheating on all the rules or laws and giving no thought whatsoever to the movement of traffic. They generally behave as though 60 seconds is a matter of life and death with them.

Pedestrian and traffic movement in Lincoln is well organized and the City Council would be well advised to leave it alone. If they get to meddling in that, they will end up with a mess on their hands.

A few words might be directed at drivers, too. Many of them are dull-minded when behind the wheel. They fail oftentimes to observe the law in regard to mandatory and optional turning lanes, cheat on the caution lights and fiddle around on the green lights.

Sometimes half the time on a green light will expire before the first car in line starts to make its crossing of the intersection. Some people will change lanes as though they occupied the only car within miles.

Granted a decent system, which we have, the other component in good movement of automobile and pedestrian traffic is human reaction and there isn't much the City Council can do about that.

Nigeria's Future Uncertain As Civil Insurrection Ends

WASHINGTON — Federal Nigeria has successfully ended the civil war and the existence of the secessionist state of Biafra—after nearly 31 months of fighting at a cost of perhaps two million lives and a billion dollars. But the problems that launched a struggle as bitter as that raging in Vietnam are unresolved by the bloodshed.

Starvation and the specter of genocide that have haunted the Biafran struggle for independence must be dealt with first. Even if Gen. Yakubu Gowon's victorious Federal regime prevents the slaughter of Biafra's Ibo-tribesmen and international agencies mobilize fast enough to feed the hungry in the occupied region, all the fears and threats that brought about the war will still be in evidence.

Tribal, religious and regional rivalries have not been resolved and, more than likely, have been deepened by the struggle. Economis recovery will be costly. The victorious Federal government has incurred debts to Britian, the Soviet Union and others.

When Nigeria became independent from Britain on Oct. 1, 1960, it was regarded as among the few African states with a chance of survival and eventual prosperity. With an area larger than France, a population of about 55 million people, a trained civil service by African standards and ample resources, including oil, Nigeria seemed to be a showcase for the benefits of enlightened colonialism.

But bubbling below the surface were tribal animosities, chiefly between the Yorubas in the west, the Moslem Hausas in the north and the sophisticated, Christian Ibos in the East. An Ibo-led coup overthrew the government in 1966, killing many Hausas. This was followed by a counter-coup led by Gen. Gowon, a northerner. Anti-Iboriots exploded, and as many as 30,000 persons were killed.

Calling the September, 1966, slaughter the "final act of sacrifice Easterners would be called upon to make in the interest of Nigerian unity," Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, the military commander of the Eastern region, raised the banner of Biafran independence on May 30, 1967.

The conflict which followed was soon characterized by pictures of starving children on the front pages and television screens of the world. It was estimated last June that more than 1,000 Biafran children were dying daily. Relief efforts had only limited success.

The Civil War had international ramifications. Britian, and the Soviet Union lined up behind the Federal government, giving the Russians a toehold in black Africa. France supported Biafra, possibly out of a desire to needle the British, who were deeply troubled by the conflict.

With the end of the fighting, many nations which had followed a hands-off policy prepared to send aid to the stricken country. Immediately after the Biafran collapse, President Nixon ordered an additional $10 million in relief supplies to be sent to the occupied areas. The United States had already channeled $70 million in foodstuffs to Biafra.

Hope was being expressed for a peace that would unite all Nngerians. But Adeoye Lambo, a Nigerial psychiatrist, warned: "It will take two generations to cure the bitterness. Our grandchildren may see the end of it."

Lincoln Case Grinds On

The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Operating Rights recommendation that Frontier Airlines be granted a direct route between Lincoln and Chicago is a disappointing but not disastrous setback in this city's latest bid for improved commercial air service.

In a brief filed with the CAB examiner handling the Lincoln case, Robert M. Johnson, the bureau supported only Frontier's Chicago-Lincoln application while saying that there is no need presently for Lincoln-Minneapolis and St. Paul and direct Lincoln-St. Louis service, also proposed by Frontier. The bureau similarly turned thumbs down on an Ozark Airlines Lincoln-Chicago segment.

In looking at the recommendation — which amounts to a lot less than Lincoln is hoping for — it should be pointed out that the bureau, while a part of the Civil Aeronautics Board, does not have the final say. In an advisory capacity, the bureau is required to file a position on air service requests, but that position is not binding. It will be taken into account when the CAB hearing examiner forwards the Lincoln file and his recommendaion to the full board (as opposed to bureau) for action.

What is perculiar, also, is the left-handedness of the bureau's support of Frontier's proposed Lincoln-Chicago route. First, it makes it dependent on Frontier's not receiving a new route between Omaha and Chicago, which could be awarded in another CAB proceeding. Second, the bureau says that new Lincoln-Chicago service must be restricted to Chicago's O'Hare Airport, whereas the director of the Chicago airport commission testified at the preiminary CAB hearing that there is no way Frontier can get into O'Hare with a new route at the present time.

We further reflect that some two to three years ago, the Bureau of Operating Rights was in full support of Lincoln 's futile request to be included in the Omaha service case. Thus its attitude toward Lincoln now is inconsistent, at least.

Meanwhile, parties to the Lincoln service case are putting the finishing touches on briefs due in February, in preparation for the final test before the CAB.

A Calculated Risk

A defendant's appeal of his conviction on a charge of keeping gambling devices raises an interesting question. In the case, the charge was brought after police discovered the gambling equipment in the defendant's car. That discovery was made when police routinely searched the car after the driver had been arrested for intoxication.

A district court and the State Supreme Court have said that the search of the car and seizure of the gambling equipment were not unconstitutional under any illegal search-and-seizure provisions. Thus, the conviction on keeping gambling devices has stood.

The question is whether a search warrant is required in such situations and the court has said it is not. The ruling was hailed locally as an aide to police in fighting crime.

Many people would no doubt concur and agree that the ruling is correct. But we should be slow in actions that tend to erode our rights against illegal search.

The requirement for a search wrrant may somewhat restrain police officers in fighting crime. But its purpose is to protect the public. If cars can be searched without a warrant in the process of some other action, would it not be possible to use such authority unfairly? Could people not be stopped under one guise or another and their cars then searched?

And when do such things become, not tools to be used against the criminal, but means of harassment by the government against anyone singled out for such abuse? And when does harassment degenerate into a full-fledged police state? The questions raised in the Nebraska case to be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court are not to be lightly dismissed.

Nixon Holding Onto Ball As First Quarter Ends; Confusing Politics, Policies Could Bring Trouble

WASHINGTON — That incorrigible football buff, Richard M. Nixon, has come to the end of the first quarter with his "game plan" intact. Like his friend, Vince Lombardi of the Washington Redskins, he is sticking to fundamentals and controlling the ball.

It is sound first-quarter strategy: he has kept the ball on the ground and hidden whenever possible. No spectaculars; no heroes; no disastrous fumbles or penalties. Safe, steady, conservative, effective and dull.

The administration seems to be operating on a fairly rigid set of assumptions: none of its major problems can be settled in a hurry; therefore, it must play for time. The object is to stay in office through the Bicentennial of the Declaration of Independence in 1976; therefore it must look to its political defenses and play for a second term.

This is clearly a more confident team than when it took the field a year ago, for it is not only more experienced but feels that it is in tune with the conservative mood of the country.

This conservative trend, the Nixon aides now feel, has actually been coming on for a longer time than most people realize. They reel off the facts:

Despite John F. Kennedy's striking television personality, Nixon polled 34,108,157 votes in 1960 — only 118,574 fewer than Kennedy.

Barry Goldwater frightened the voters with his dramatic views on the war and Social Security in 1964, and suffered a spectacular defeat, but even then the Republicans got over 27 million votes, and two years later, Ronald Reagan carried the conservative banner to a remarkable victory in California and will probably do the same this year.

In 1968, Nixon regained the White House for the Republicans with 43.4 per cent of the vote, but George Wallace of Alabama, who was to the right of everybody, polled almost ten million votes, so that between Nixon and Wallace, the conservatives got 56.9 of the total of 42.7 for the progressive Hubert Humphrey.

Morover, according to this thesis, the swing to the right is not only continuing but getting stronger, for the Republicans not only won the governorships of New Jersey and Virginia in 1969, but law and order candidates won the mayorships of Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Detroit, and while the conservatives lost to Mayor John Lindsay of New York, they won well over half the total vote.

This sort of thing naturally gives the administration the feeling that it will get a lot of support if it merely keeps banging away steadily to the right, especially since the Democrats are leaderless and the old geezer network in the Democratic-controlled house is sadly inept.

Nevertheless, there is a big difference between effective politics and effective policies, and Nixon, who concentrates on politics, could be confusing the two. For he is in deep trouble with the economy. He has slowed the rate of inflation, but it is still going up, and this could be his most serious problem in the mid-term elections later in the year.

Similarly, he has slowed the rate of the killing in Vietnam, but the war goes on, now into its eighth year, and the administration is beginning to give the impression that it has waged such an effective counter attack against the critics of the war that it is prepared to let the conflict loiter along about as it is. This may prove later in the game to be both poor policy and poor politics.

It is a very dangerous thing to believe that the blacks and the young protesters in general will adapt to Nixon's timetable. The clocks are ticking faster in the slums than on Wall Street and Main Street. Nixon seems to believe that his problem is with George Wallace rather than with the left and that he must defuse the Wallace movement rather than the radical movement, and he may be right but it is quite a gamble.

What is clear at the beginning of the second quarter is that the "forward together" part of his game plan has not succeeded. He has kept the Democrats off balance, but is still stuck with the war, inflation, inequality, and crime he promised to control in the campaign, and the Democrats are now trying to regroup to make this clear.

"Mr. Nixon and Company," says Hubert Humphrey, "are putting band-aids on these wounds but not getting at the source of the trouble. They are mechanics, account executives. They are not artists of politics . . . They know how to manage but they have no creativity; in other words, they know how to lay bricks but have no vision of a cathedral."

With a little organ music, this could serve as the kick-off for the 1970 quarter, but Humphrey doesn't have the ball. It is still in the hands of the Republicans and they clearly intend to control it.

BOB CONSIDINE

Biafra, 20th Century Pawn

NEW YORK — "It hands me a laugh," the rugged missionary said with a trace of bitterness. "Nobody much would lift a hand to help us do our job in Biafra. But when Biafra fell, just about everybody came forward with offers to help. They fell over one another."

By "us" the exhausted man meant Joint Church Aid, the humanitarian effort of Protestant, Jewish and Catholic organizations to keep Biafran children and old people from death by starvation and kwashiokor, the disease that strikes down those deprived of protein. By "they" he meant the big powers.

He had been up half the night, listening with increasing anger and alarm to a smooth-talking Nigerian diplomat from the UN evading the pertinent questions of Barry Farber, the able conductor of a New York radio interview show. The diplomat, like his leader at home, Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, gave no positive assurances that the collapse of the Biafran armed forces and the flight of their commander, Gen. Ojukwu, would not be followed by pitiless reprisals against those who had dreamed of independence.

As Biafra fell, about 120 missionaries, mostly Irish, stayed with their missions.

If there is any disposition on the part of occupying Nigerian forces to heap revenge on Biafrans who opposed them ruggedly and resourcefully for two and a half years, the punishment could easily be extended to the whites from far-off lands who served as good Samaritans.

What happened to Biafra is a microcosm of what's wrong with man and his century.

The instrument of negotiations, peace and rehabilitation that was set up in the wake of World War II — the United Nations — did nothing substantial about Biafra during the long blockade and fight for survival. Secretary General U Thant's position, which generally reflects the do-nothingness of the world organization, was that this was a civil war and, therefore, the noble Charter contained no provisions for alleviating it.

The sad part of that is the Charter, a pledge as inspiringly worded as the Magna Carta and our own Declaration of Independence and the Constitution has been torn and twisted out of all recognition by those who fashioned it so hopefully after the most disasterous war in history.

But when Biafra went down the drain, U Thant (who was in Africa and hardly an hour's flying time from Lagos) sent an appeal to Gen. Gowon to show "magnanimity and community spirit." Simultaneously, officials of the UN's best bureau, UNICEF, the Children's Emergency Fund, started belatedly to buy 120 trucks in the hope of running food and medicine in by road, hitherto sealed.

By the same token, Prime Minister Wilson, whose government's arms, ammunition, anti-aircraft guns, tanks, trucks, etc., brought about the capitulation, expressed concern and offered to send food to the conquered.

The Nixon administration, which had not wanted to become involved, any more than did the Johnson Administration, offered to send a cloud of loaded C-130's — if Gen. Gowon allowed such aid. There was also an offer of a $10 million U.S. loan to Gowon's government, to help speed up things. All of a sudden we seemed to be suffering from a bad conscience.

From a financial aspect, the chief losers in the war will be the French munitions makers and West German industrialists who have made fine profits selling arms to the desperate Biafrans for the past two years. Also, the well-paid Egyptian pilots who flew the Soviet-supplied Mig's and Ilyushins for the Nigerian air force, and concentrated their fire on unprotected refugee camps and market places. They will now presumably be asked to go back to Cairo and take on the alarmingly determined Israeli pilots in American-built F-4's.

Biafra was one of the pawns of the 20th century. Its eventual fate was sealed long before the pathetically dignified capitulation broadcast by Brig. Phillip Effiong, the chief of staff. He thanked the world for such aid as it was able or willing to give in the past, notably Pope Paul VI and the Joint Church Aid. He concluded, "May God help us all."

The tough missionary mentioned earlier, whose name it might be harmful to reveal, joins prayerfully in Effiong's supplication. But he added a thought.

"We lost," the holy man said with a glint. "But we sure gave it one hell of a try."

HARRIET TUBMAN

They Had A Dream

Harriet Tubman was one of the most fearless "conductors" on the Underground Railway, an escape route over which thousands of slaves fled to the North in the decade before the Civil War.

An escaped slave herself, Harriet repeatedly risked capture leading others to freedom. She made 19 journeys into the South and brought out more than 300 slaves.

Each trip became successively more dangerous as the reward for her capture mounted, eventually reaching $40,000. But Harriet, who had great faith in God, led a seemingly charmed life. She always outwitted her pursuers.

Harriet became a legend among the Southern blacks. She was known as the Moses of her people.

When the Civil War broke out, she used her talents in the Union Army. Her duties ranged from cook, laundress and nurse to guide, scout and spy.

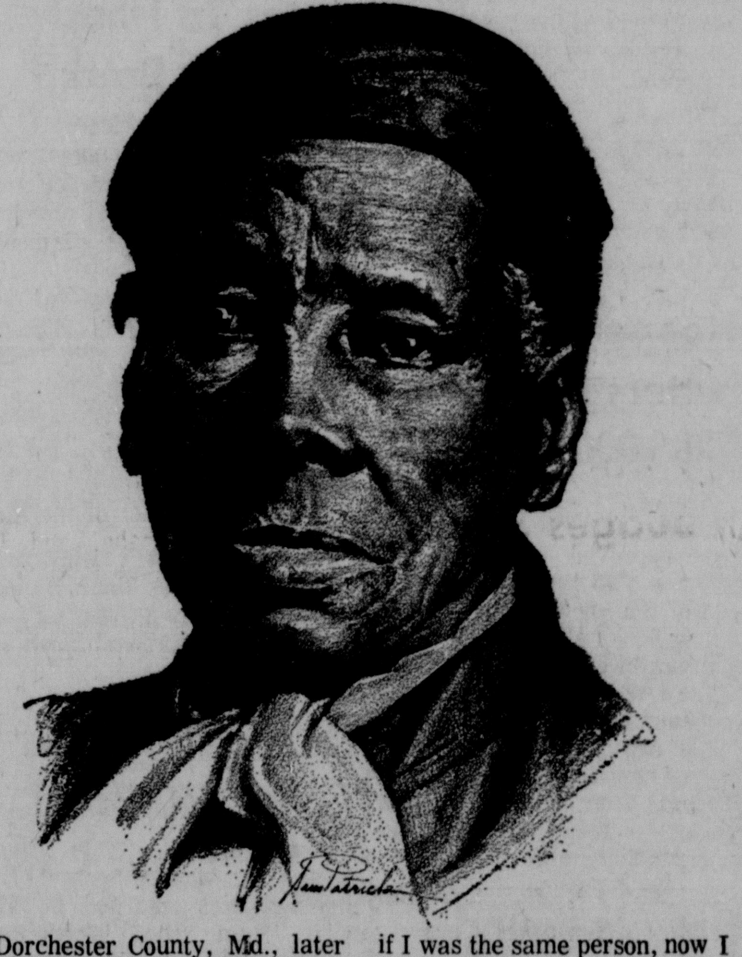
She was born Arminta Ross around 1820 on a plantation in Dorchester County, Md., later adopting the name Harriet. Both of her parents were slaves. Harriet, one of 11 children in her family, was small as a child but she did the work of a man. She plowed the fields, drove an oxcart and cut timber, and in her labor developed tremendous strength and stamina.



Around 1844, she married a free Negro named John Tubman, though she remained a slave. Deciding five years later to escape, she told her husband who refused to go with her:

"There's two things I've got a right to: death or liberty. One or the other I mean to have. No one will take me back alive."

Harriet left taking two of her brothers with her but they became frightened and turned back. She pushed on alone, traveling by night, and reached Pennsylvania and freedom in a couple of days. It was a moment she never forgot.

"I looked at my hands to see if I was the same person, now I was free. There was such a glory over everything. The sun came like gold through the trees and over the fields and I felt like I was in heaven."

Harriet returned later for her husband to find he had married another woman. Eventually she lead her parents, a sister and two brothers out of bondage.

No one ever turned back on her again. She carried a pistol and told them they could move North — or die on the spot. "I nebber los' a passenger," she used to say.

After the war, Harriet settled in Auburn, N.Y., and married again. She applied for a military pension but it was 30 years before she got it. When it was granted, she used the money to found a home for the aged.

Harriet died in Auburn in 1913.
